COOLIDGE ORDERS OIL SCANDAL PROBE

SENATOR REED SEEKS DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION; LINCOLN'S KIN SLEW 2, HID HEADS IN CEMENT BLOCK

Today

Speed Counts, Mr. Coolidge.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE will attend to the Navy oil scandal, remembering, of course, that the rich man who bribes another to rob the people is worse than the bribe taker.

The President doubtless knows that unless those guilty go to prison, and start on their way before long, a Democrat will go to the White House, starting the trip next November.

IN THIS MATTER, speed is what counts. No one outside the idiot asylum in America doubts the existence in this case of rank bribery, so there is no excuse for losing time.

FREDERICK LANDIS sums up the disgraceful selling out of the people and the Navy in a few energetic words: "None can measure the moral detriment of this greasy mess at Washington. It casts off fumes of disgust, suspicion, communism and assures the common crook that his is a noble profession.

"IT'S NOT the oqil they take, nor the Navy they scuttle, but the public faith they whittle away. Plug up the rat holes of public life, scald the vermin from the altar, end the felonious informality between plunder and government, or open the penitentiaries and let the little fellows out."

THE NAVY OIL scandal arouses a caution in those trying to sell or to buy the nation's property at Muscle Shoals. The people observe that Henry Ford, who does not deal in bribery, out who could develop Muscle Shoals and then promises to produce cheap fertilizer, seems to make little headway.

AN OFFICIAL that has been planning to sell, and any plutocratic bribe giver that has been planning to buy Muscle Shoals, will do well to hold off the "suit cases filled with cash," for a while. The public is not in a good mood for any more of those "all cash" transactions.

The Canadian Pacific Railway will establish its own radio, with receiving stations in the homes of its 100,000 employes.

Once a week, the president of the road will talk to them all.

Makes the Deaf Hear

Remarkable Invention Enables the Deaf to Hear All Sounds Clearly

Everyone who is troubled with deafness in any form will be interested in the announcement of the Dictograph Products Corporation, Suite 1117E, Blake Building, Boston 11, Mass., that they have at last perfected a device which will enable every one whose auditory nerve is not entirely destroyed to hear as perfectly as one whose hearing is normal. To test it thoroughly they sent it to a number of people who had been deaf for years and they report most gratifying results. Many state that they hear the slightest sound with perfect ease and that their natural hearing has been greatly improved. The manufacturers are so proud of their achievement and so confident that every deaf person will be amazed and delighted with it, that they offer to send it to anyone by prepaid parcel post on ten days' free trial. They do not ship C. O. D., nor do they require any deposit, but send it entirely at their own risk and expense, allowing the user ten full days to try it and decide whether they want to keep it or not. As there is no obligation whatever, everyone who is troubled with deafness in any form should take advantage of this liberal free trial offer. Just send them your name and address for descriptive literature and free trial request blank—Advt.

MISSOURIAN WILL OPPOSE McADOO FOR FIRST PLACE

Senator Who Was Humiliated by Wilson in 1920 to Put Up Battle for Presidency

BACKERS IN CONFERENCE

Manager Announces Candidacy of Man Who Fought League of Nations to Standstill

St. Louis, Jan. 26.—United States Senator James A. Reed is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Ed Glenn of Louisiana, Missouri, his 1922 primary campaign manager, announced this afternoon.

The announcement followed a conference Reed held with a large number of friends and supporters. Reed did not make the announcement himself and in an address merely said he was "in the hands of my friends."

The Senator was careful to avoid any mention of his candidacy and asserted he was interested in the selection of delegates to the national convention who were representative of the Democrats of Missouri and who would "reflect credit" on the State in the preparation of a platform and in the selection of a candidate.

After his talk, all attending the meeting discussed his candidacy, and there was no opposition voiced to it.

Glenn urged all to work hard to obtain Reed delegates to the national convention.

Reed headquarters probably will be opened in St. Louis.

Reed Has Strong Support for Race

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, whose bitter enmity and opposition to Woodrow Wilson has provided one of the most spectacular political feuds in recent years, is believed to have determined on entering the Presidential fight for two reasons.

1—The belief held not only by Reed but by many other Democrats, that "anything may happen" in New York next June, particularly if the reputed coalition of anti-McAdoo strength is successful in blocking the nomination of the ex-Treasury head, and

2—A determination on the part of the anti-Wilson faction in the party to wage a bitter fight against the convention's endorsing the international policies of Mr. Wilson, particularly the League of Nations.

There is also a personal angle to the matter where Reed himself is concerned. He has never forgotten that he was denied a seat in the convention four years ago because friends of the ex-President were in control of the committee on contests. The spectacle of a Democratic Senator being humiliated and kept outside the breastworks at San Francisco, denied even a seat in his own State delegation, was one of the outstanding features of the 1920 convention. At that time Reed vowed vengeance.

GOT HIS REVENGE.

He was partially compensated two years ago when he triumphed in his campaign for re-election to the Senate after Mr. Wilson had written letters to Missouri, exhorting his friends to repudiate Reed and nominate Breckenridge Long. He plans now to complete his revenge by making himself the rallying point for the

LOSER A SUICIDE IN FIRE PROBE

Vermont Man Slashes His Throat After Being Queried in $500,000 Blaze

Lyndonville, Vt., Jan. 26.—Albert Stern, heaviest loser in the $500,000 conflagration of last Monday which practically wiped out the business section of the town, with the loss of seven lives, committed suicide today half an hour after the State fire marshal has finished questioning him regarding the start of the fire.

The suicide occurred on the eve of a memorial service for the seven persons who lost their lives in the fire.

The suicide was owner of the Stern block, largest building destroyed by the flames. It was in this block that an explosion occurred, it is said, just before or just after the discovery of the flames. The explosion killed two women, three children and a man living in apartments just above the boiler-room of the block.

Although the motive that impelled Stern to take his life is a mystery, it is said that he was nervous and apparently ill at ease while answering questions put to him by the fire marshal. Officials noticed that at times his speech was somewhat incoherent, but they attributed it to the strain brought about by the fire.

Dr. Cutter and Hypnotic Cockatoo Have So Many Clients They Can't See All

By MARY

Who fortune tellers believe was merely in search of information of interest to herself.

I am a disappointed wife, victim of my husband's pay envelope plot.

This I learned from Dr. George B. Cutter, psychic, in his luxurious Back Bay place, in the presence of his brilliant kissing cockatoo.

Dr. Cutter wears jewelled rings and watch fob; also a pink pearl scarf pin.

As to my troubles—marriage has been a blow to me. My husband has deceived me.

There has been no woman in my case. The trouble all centers in my husband's weekly pay envelope.

Before our marriage, it seems, my husband misled me as to the money he was earning. He pictured his wealth and success in glowing color—nigh as glowing as Dr. Cutter's cockatoo.

But marriage revealed the sad truth. Husband was not making as much as he said.

Result—I am unhappy, discontented, driven to consult psychic advisers.

This Dr. Cutter told me for $3. He told me other things; but none of them was as important as this. At least, that is what he said.

"NOT A FORTUNE TELLER"

I sought Dr. Cutter after making appointment with him by telephone. Over the 'phone he asked:

"You don't want anything about fortune telling, do you?"

I said I wanted only his regular reading.

"I'm not a fortune teller, you know," he replied.

My appointment with Dr. Cutter was for 4 o'clock. I arrived at the Hotel Minerva, 214 Huntington ave., where he has his office, at four minutes past four.

The telephone girl told me he had taken a client at four, because I had not been there.

"He's very busy, you know, and one has to be very prompt," she said.

Five minutes later, a man walked up to the desk and asked for "George." The telephone girl deferentially connected him, and I heard him say, "George, I have a message from Mary. I want to see you."

I wondered if the message had anything to do with myself.

Anyway, the man was admitted to Dr. Cutter's office, in spite of his "client."

A LITTLE GIRL CLIENT

A girl applicant for an appointment soon drew my attention. She was apparently only 12 or 13 years old.

She wore a little short pleated skirt, showing rolled stockings and bare knees. A little black sailor hat was pulled down over her bobbed

WIFE AND HER BROTHER ARE HIS VICTIMS

Husband Confesses He Shot Them and Buried Bodies in Furnace of Greenhouse

THINK SLAYER INSANE

Police Find Gruesome Evidence of Crime Where Murderer Tells Them He Threw It

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 26.—Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer-horticulturist and distant relative of Abraham Lincoln, today confessed one of the most amazing double killings in criminal history when he declared, according to Chief of Police Michaels, that he slew both his wife, Lina Shroup Lincoln, and her brother, Byron Shoup, burned their bodies in a small greenhouse furnace at his small home near here, and then imbedded their severed heads in a block of cement.

The cement block was found where Lincoln said it would be—in a dump near his cottage—and the heads taken from it. They were identified.

WIFE WAS CRYING.

Lincoln added to the gruesome confession of his disposal of the two bodies by confessing anew that he and not his wife, as he had at first contended, killed Sheup, and added other details which brought the crime into the annals of the unusual.

"I went to the movies that night," Chief of Police Michaels said Lincoln told him after the heads had been chopped from the cement.

"When I got home Byron was not in his bed on the sleeping porch, and I knew he was in my wife's room. I could not stand it any longer. I shot Byron through the head.

"Then I ran to the greenhouse and got my rifle. Lina was crouched on the floor crying when I got back to the house. I shot her too."

KISSES SON.

Lincoln was nervous and pale, the chief said, as he ran through the strange narrative. He kissed his son John before he started his last confession and asked Chief Michaels to care for him.

According to witnesses who saw the block cracked open by three husky policemen, wielding sledges, the heads were well preserved except for the outer skin. The features, it was said, were plainly identified as those of Shoup and Mrs. Lincoln.

Shoup's head was the first to be revealed and was easily removed. Mrs. Lincoln's presented greater difficulty because her long hair was bound in the cement.

MORE BLOCKS SOUGHT.

The discovery of the two heads started a search for other block of cement. The chief of police believes Lincoln may have used his strange method of hiding the crime to do away with other large bones not easily stuffed into the mouth of his small furnace.

"I molded the heads into a cement block," Lincoln told the officer before the discovery. "It's out in the dump near my house."

The chief, accompanied by a policeman and a dozen vagrants who had taken refuge in the jail from the cold weather, made a quick trip to the dump. They found the block with little trouble. Despite its size, it was easily lifted into an automobile by a policeman, who remarked that he could not have lifted it had it been solid.

THINKS SLAYER INSANE.

Chief Michaels said he was not satisfied with the story he says Lincoln told him.

He pointed out that, while Lincoln declared he shot both his wife and his brother-in-law through the head, he could not find bullet holes in the skulls. He also said he doubted the motive Lincoln gave.

Michaels declared he had from the first believed the heads of the victims would be found, because Lincoln consistently refrained from saying he had burned them.

The chief declared his belief Lincoln is insane and announced he would try to have him committed to an asylum rather than sent to the gallows.

122 Japanese Spirits See Prince Regent We

Royal Bridegroom and Bride Exchange Sacred Rice Wine and Plight Troth

Tokio, Jan. 26 (A. P.).—In the sacred precincts of the Imperial Palace and in accordance with the ancient marriage ritual, antedating the Christian era, Prince Regent Hirohito was wedded tadoy to Princess Nagako, eldest daughter of Prince Kuni.

Residents of Tokio indulged in joyous celebration of the event, the first public expression of joy since the disaster of last September. Great crowds gathered in the streets, which were gaily decorated for the occasion, and thronged the open spaces in the vicinity of the palace for a glimpse of the royal couple.

The wedding was celebrated with Shinto rites, and was an announcement of the event to the imperial spirits which are enshrined in the Kashiki-Dokoro, or Holy of Holies, in front of which the pair took their vows.

The spirits of 122 royal predecessors witnessed the union and gave their blessings, according to devout Japanese belief. The royal couple exchanged bowls of sacred rice wine, to plight their troth, after the ancient custom.

Previously, as in the case of accession to the throne, the party, including members of the royal family and officials of the household, assembled and for twko hours went through a slow movement toward the shrine, every step of which, includnig the sounding of the clappers, was according to the imperial wedding law.

ALIENS ARE BARRED.

No foreigners witnessed the ceremony, only the members of the royal family and the highest dignitaries of the Empire being permitted to attend the rites.

The garb of the recent was the simple dress suit of the Japanese gentleman for such occasions except that the upper cloak was red with a shade of yellow running through it, the patterns embroidered on it representing Mandarian ducks. The hakama, or loose trousers, were of white silk with patterns of butterflies, while the obi, or belt, was of black leather decorated with carved stones.

The bride's costume was far more elaborate. The chief garment, or karaginu, was a dazzling kimono of scarlet and purple silk, with the chrysanthemum crest in white embroidered on it. The mo, or skirt, was another piece of artistic weaving, being of white silk handsomely embroidered.

The uwagi, or other dress, was of Oil Magnate's Secretary Denies Story of Bonus as First Revealed by Roosevelt

HIS MEMORY REFRESHED

By JAMES R. NOURSE

Washington, Jan. 26.—At the direction of President Coolidge, Secretary of the Interior Work today started an investigation of the legal and technical aspect of the Teapot Dome and California oil leases.

Washington, Jan. 26 (Universal).—A new explanation of the $68,000 cancelled checks supposed to have been paid former Secretary Fall's ranch foreman by the Sinclair oil interests was offered today to the Senate committee in its resumption of the Teapot Dome investigation.

G. D. Wahlberg, former secretary for Sinclair, who was said by Archie Roosevelt to have stated the cancelled checks came from Fall's foreman, went on the witness stand and flatly contradicted his previous testimony.

Wahlberg declared "his memory was refreshed" since he testified before, and that now he remembered the checks were paid to S. C. Hildreth, Sinclair's racing stable manager. He discarded entirely his previous story that he spoke about "six or eight cows" instead of "sixty-eight thousand."

Sinclair's attorney, G. T. Stangord, followed Wahlberg by dramatically producing the checks totalling $68,244.27 in payment of Hildreth's salary and share of racing purses earned by Zev and other horses of Sinclair's stable during the year.

Wahlberg's purpose in correcting this testimony is now clear to the committee, because he said he had carried out his threat to resign and is no longer in Sinclair's employ.

DISCREPANCY IN CHECKS.

The committee is not altogether satisfied that Whalberg's new testimony affords a complete explanation of his statement to Roosevelt about the $68,000. For in his talk with Roosevelt the reference was to "cancelled" checks, supposed to have come from Fall's foreman, whereas the Hildreth checks had just been drawn and were not yet cashed nor cancelled.

Wahlberg was sharply grilled by Senator Walsh on this point, calling attention to the discrepancies in this testimony.

Archie Roosevelt was also before the committee for re-examination and amplified his previous statement that $68,000 in cancelled checks to Fall's foreman" was mentioned.

Edward L. Doheny sent to the committee a revised offer for the surrender of his lease on Naval Reserve Number 1, which provided merely for reimbursement to the Pan-American Transport Company for the accounts expended on the Pearl Harbor storage facilities, this sum to be ascertained by a government audit.

DOHENY'S OFFER.

Doheny's offer to return the leases to the Elk Hill's property in reserve number 1 in California was presented to the committee by Attorney McNab at the opening of the session.

'Use Big Stick, Hit Hard,' Solons Urge in Oil Probe

Chicago, Jan. 26.

(By the Associated Press.)

FIVE Republican Congressmen from Kansas in Chicago today jointly sent a telegram to President Coolidge's secretary declaring the Teapot Dome oil reserve lease matter, under investigation by a Senate committee, demands vigorous action by the President. They urged the "big stick" be used.

The message reads:

"Believe situation demands vigorous action by President in oil lease matter. Public amazed by developments and nothing could increase confidence in administration like use of big stick without delay. Think it important to hit at once and hit hard."

It was signed by J. N. Tincher, Homer Hoch, D. R. Anthony, Jr., J. C. Strong and Hays B. White.

McNab read a statemetn setting forth the amount expended on the Pearl Harbor storage tanks for which he asked to be reimbursed upon surrender of the lease.

The committee heard the statement without comment.

G. T. Stanford, one of Sinclair's attorneys, then addressed the committee, presenting the note for $25,000 which Fall gave to Zevely when the loan was made. The note was dated May 28, 1923, and bore Fall's signature. Stanford passed the slip of paper around the committee table. He wanted to take it away with him and leave a photostatic copy, but Senator Walsh objected and demanded that the original note be kept in the committee's possession.

"Isn't that rather unusual?" Stanford asked.

"Not at all," Walsh replied abruptly, and the note was filed.

MORE ZEVELY CHECKS.

Stanford also showed the committee two checks given by Zevely when he purchased the home on Long Island from William Thaw. One was for $84,000 dated November 8, 1923, and the other was for $2,125 in favor of James M. Strong, broker in the transaction.

Stanford then asked permission to cross-examine Archie Roosevelt when the latter testified, and the request was granted. He made the further statement that he cabled Harry Sinclair today asking where the books of the Hyva Corporation are and for authority to produce them before the committee.

He said he was certain Sinclair intends to expedite his business in Europe and return here as soon as possible.

Archie Roosevelt began his testimony after a statement by Senator Smoot to the effect that the committee felt there was still a great deal to be explained concerning his reason for leaving the Sinclair Company. He was asked if he had discussed the matter with other officials of the company. Roosevelt replied he discussed it with many of them.

ROOSEVELT WORRIED.

"I was greatly worried by the testimony that was coming out in this hearing," he said. "I wanted to find out if there was any reason why I should resign."

"Did you ever at any time have any information that there was anything irregular in connection with the terms of the lease?"

"No, sir, not all. But I had been anxious to quit the company for a long time. I thought I could get more money by working for myself."

"Why didn't you?"

"Because I was not able to make the proper connections."

Roosevelt then took up his conversation with Wahlberg, in which the latter told him he had $68,000 in cancelled checks which had been sent to the foreman of Fall's ranch. Wahlberg, he said, advised him to resign.

"You are sure he said checks had been sent to Fall's foreman?" Smoot asked.

"Absolutely certain," the witness replied.

"It was not the foreman of Sinclair's ranch?"

"No, sir. Sinclair's name was not mentioned."

ROOSEVELT WAS SCARED.

Roosevelt then described as in his previous testimony how Wahlberg called him on the telephone at 1 o'clock in the morning and he had his brother, Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, "Listen in" on the extension line in the Roosevelt house.

Roosevelt also related a conversation with a Mr. Crandall, another Sinclair man, to whom he put the same question as to whether he should resign from the Sinclair Company. He said Crandell told him he thought Wahlberg was mistaken.

In the telephone conversation with Wahlberg, Roosevelt said Wahlberg assured him he would come before the committee and tell "the whole truth." He said he asked Wahlberg if he were not scared and Wahlberg admitted he was.

"I was, too," Roosevelt added.

Before giving his testimony last week, Roosevelt said he went by motor to Baltimore, where he "picked up" the train on which Wahlberg was traveling to Washington and came the rest of the way with him.

"COWS" VS. "CHECKS."

On the train, he said, he again brought up the subject of the $68,000 checks and asked Wahlberg if he were not certain he said "$68,000" and not "six or eight cows," in the first conversation. Wahlberg told him he was sure he had not meant to refer to checks, and asked Roosevelt what he intended to tell the committee.

Roosevelt replied that he purposed to say Wahlberg spoke about checks.

Senator Walsh asked Roosevelt how he first learned that Secretary Fall intended to make the Teapot Dome lease to Sinclair. He replied he first learned of it through the newspapers. He was in Europe during December, 1921, and in January and February of 1922, he was only mildly interested in it, at first, he said, and that was mainly because "Ted was in the Navy Department."

"How did you come to get employment with the Sinclair interests?" Walsh inquired.

GETTING SINCLAIR JOB.

"I was with the Bigelow Carpet Company after leaving college," he replied. "And then the war came and I came back and had to look for a job. I asked my brother where I could get one, and he told me he had been with an oil company and would ask for a job for me there. He gave me a letter to Mr. Sinclair and I saw him and he gave me the job."

Roosevelt said the war left him in ill health and he wanted a job that would send him around the world. For this reason, he said, the job with Sinclair was very acceptable to him, because his first duty was to go to South American countries in search of concessions for Sinclair.

When he first read the terms of the Teapot Dome lease, Roosevelt said he believed the lease very advantageous to the government.

Stanford began his cross-examination by asking Roosevelt if at the time of the first conversation with Wahlberg did not suggest that they talk to Sinclair's attorney first. Roosevelt said that was true, but that he suggested he and Wahlberg should go over it themselves.

MEETING ON TRAIN.

Taking up the meeting between Roosevelt and Wahlberg on the train from Baltimore, Stanford wanted to know if Roosevelt tried to get Wahlberg to tell them same story about the $68,000 as he would tell. He denied this, adding that Mrs. Roosevelt, who accompanied him, thereupon told Wahlberg this would be "awful" because the public would believe Roosevelt and not Wahlberg.

"Then your wife had some suspicious of the case, did she?" asked Stanford.

"My wife is always suspicious of me," young Roosevelt replied with a laugh in which every one joined.

Stanford asked about Sinclair's trip abroad and inquired if it was not a common practice for "big men" to have their names kept off the passenger list in order to avoid being bothered before sailing.

Politics Not to Affect Probe, Says Daugherty

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 26.—"President Coolidge and I have a distinct understanding as to the attitude of the Department of Justice concerning the Senate lease inquiry and allied matters, and the interests of the nation will be fully protected," Attorney-General Daugherty said today.

He and Mrs. Daugherty arrived en route to Miami Beach, where his is taking Mrs. Daugherty in company with two nurses. Daugherty expects to spend only a few days at Miami.

"The political aspects or effects of this inquiry," said the Attorney-General, "no matter what they may be, will not enter into the slightest consideration of the Department of Justice. Our department has been receiving every bit of evidence in the Senate inquiry and will continue to examine and revie wthis testimony."

Sec. Denby Involved in New Teapot Dome Probe

It was announced that the House Naval Afairs Commitee on Monday would open an inquiry to determine by what authority Secretary of the Navy Denby turned over the naval oil reserves in Wyoming to Secretary of the Interior Fall, who subsequently leased them to Harry F. Sinclair.

Examination of Fall Goes Over to Tuesday

Washington, Jan. 26.—Examination of former Interior Secretary Fall in the Senate oil inquiry has been deferred until Tuesday.

Chairman Lenroot said it was doubtful Fall would be able to appear Monday because of ill health, and, besides, Senators wanted to be on the Senate floor Monday because the whole subject would be debated then.

Oil Leases' Annulment Urged by Garret

By Universal Service.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Representative Garret, Democratic leader in the House, today introduced two joint resolutions declaring the leases of the naval oil reserves in California and Wyoming to the Doheny and Sinclair interests to be against the public interest and void. The resolutions call upon President Coolidge immediately to enter suit to have them annulled.

The resolutions further direct the President to seek injunctions preventing further extraction of oil from the naval reserves by the lessees and to employ separate counsel, independent of the Department of Justice, to prosecute such litigation.

SENATORS REFUSE TO BAR DIVIDED FAMILY ECONOMY

Mellon's Attempt to Force Combination of Incomes Is Voted Down—Democrats to Push Own Plans for Tax Cutting

Washington, Jan. 26.—Secretary Mellon's recommendation that husbands and wives be prohibited from dividing family incomes for purposes of filing separate tax returns as allowed in eight States, was voted down today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The House Republican steering committee also took up the tax situation with a view to determining a program for the party in consideration of the tax bill in committee and on the floor, but no conclusions were reported.

Representative Longworth, majority floor leader, and some Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee are in disagreement on whether to write a party tax bill and force it through committee or to ask the Democrats again to compromise on a nonpartison measure.

By WINDER R. HARRIS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The important part this session of Congress is going to play in the presidential campaign is growing more and more evident, now that both Houses have swung into definite action.

Before the session was convened some of the older heads ventured the prediction that about all it would do would be to pass the annual appropriation bills and go home. But this was before Secretary Mellon came out with his tax reduction program. That has caught up public sentiment in such a whirlwind that passage of a bill along this line cannot be avoided. The bonus question also has to be faced.

AT ODDS ON PLAN.

These two measures are being made special vehicles for the politicians. The Democrats have their own substitutes for the Mellon tax program, which would reduce the burden upon smaller incomes more than the Treasury head proposes, while on the higher surtaxes the substitute would not cut nearly so deep as Mr. Mellon recommends, with the full approval of President Coolidge.

And while these two factions are fighting it out, the insurgent Republicans or Progressives, as they style themselves, have their own plan which is radically different from either of the other two propositions.

The Democratic strategy is to force the fighting in the open, so with the hoped-for support of the insurgent progressives they can put through their substitute and thus rob the Republicans of the political benefit.

DAILY DEBATES.

The value placed upon tax reductions as campaign material is aptly demonstrated by the almost daily debates in the Senate at least two months, if not three or more, before the bill can possibly reach the floor on that side. A dozen Senators one day this week took up several hours debating the merits of the Mellon plan.

Bonus looms up as a possible campaign issue of importance from the expectation that if passed by Congress President Coolidge will veto it. Even the administration supporters on the Republican side who favor the bonus are demanding its early passage. They have to be re-elected just as well as Mr. Coolidge.

And even the Democrats who are opposed to the legislation are hoping it will pass, so the President will face the veto issue. If he follows his predecessor's example and sends it back with his disapproval and the veto is again sustained, or if it should be overridden, the Democrats believe that action will drive the bulk of the 4,000,000 veterans of the World War and their families to the Democratic standard.

TARIFF DEAD.

The Democrats also have carefully killed plans to develop the tariff question for campaign use. The original plan of the Democratic National Committee was to make this the dominant issue of the campaign. This plan will be adhered to, it is said, if other developments in the political field do not rise to eclipse it, as now seems very likely.

The League of Nations and World Court crowd are making a last gasp fight to bring those deceased bodies back to life. A Senate investigating committee, headed by Senator George Moses of New Hampshire, one of the most irreconcilable of the irreconcilables, is doing its best to add the final fatal blow to both by "showing up" the Bok Peace Prize Plan as pro-league and pro-court propaganda. The Foreign Relations Committee is also contributing its part to the cause by keeping President Coolidge's resubmission of the Root-Hughes-Hoover court proposal securely laid away in a pigeonhole.

OIL SCANDAL.

While the questions are being shaped in the best style for voters' consumption, according to the views of those doing the shaping, the Teapot Dome investigating committee is putting the finishing touches on one of the choicest government financiers now is on the had to roll up in its ballot for many campaigns. Newberryism, Daughertyism, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and War Fraud stories fade somewhat into unimportance, while this inquisitorial body, led by Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, weaves together the tale of how the navy's oil reserves were disposed of. Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, than whom no Senator within the memory of the oldest Senate attaches has had a bitter tongue, is giving daily lessons in how this issue may be served to the voters.

Coolidge Favors Leases; Says 'Somebody' Guilty

By UNIVERSAL SERVICE.

Washington, Jan. 26.—President Coolidge, it was said at the White House today, is planning an announcement that he believes the oil leases held by the Doheny and Sinclair interests to be sound and advantageous to the government. Prior to this information it had been said for the Executive that he favored immediate abrogation of the leases.

At the same time, the executive will strongly urge criminal prosecution of any individual shown to have wrongfully profited in the letting of the contracts. Mr. Coolidge already has announced he is convinced there has been wrongdoing.

CABINET MEN CLEAR.

The President also will quiet widespread rumors that he will shortly ask for the resignation from his Cabinet of Attorney Geenral Harry M. Daugherty and Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby. He takes the stand that so far there has been no evidence to reflect on the integrity of the two Cabinet officers, and he proposes to keep his official family intact.

The Executive announcement or statement may be expected early in the coming week after Former Secretary Fall has testified before the Senate investigating committee. It will be the result of an urgent appeal from party leaders and campaign managers for a statement of policy as related to the oil scandal exposures. Its purpose will be to clear if possible the existing administration and safeguard the Coolidge political prospects.

It was explained for the President today that his views may undergo a change if evidence of which he is not aware is brought out by the investigators.

BELIEVES SOMEONE GUILTY.

The President's Belief that there has been a violation of the criminal statues by "somebody" was declared to be unshakeable. The prospective statement, however, will make it clear he does not believe the wrongdoing extends to any one now so closely associated with him as the two cabinet members whose names have figured prominently in the scandal.

As to the return of the oil leases to the government the President holds the view that this step should be taken only in the event that the government's interests have suffered thereby. His view today is that the Doheny lease was legal in every way and predicated upon an act of Congress.

He holds there is a genuine benefit to the government in leasing the oil reserve in California. The fact that Doheny has since declared that he expects to make a profit ranging from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 out of the transaction is not to be weighed against the direct benefit to the government of the Royalty Oil, the executive believes.

PROFIT IN ROYALTIES.

The Teapot Dome lease to the Sinclair interests he considers of even greater benefit to the government. He has been advised that such oil as is paid to the government in royalties out of this property will be clear profit, as the oil was draining into other wells and the government was not in position at the time to operate the field on its own account.

It also was learned that the President intends to entrust the entire criminal prosecution to Attorney General Daugherty, unless Congress specifically requires that he do otherwise. The President already has consulted Mr. Daugherty at great length on procedure in the scandal.

Slashing by Countess Bares Chum's Love Loss

Miss Florence Newburg

Mrs. Sheehan Tells Court Beach Cafe Battle Began by Rival's Remark

"Countess" Helen Keefe Von Motz Vladimir, her sister, Mrs. Mary Sheehan; Sarro Vaccarro, her suitor, and Florence Newburg of Lynn, principals in the cheek-slashing of the latter in a Revere Beach restaurant free-for-all fight early yesterday, had their cases continued for a week on arraignment in Chelsea District Court.

The trouble started when the countess, her sister and Vaccarro, her razor-wielding, gun-toting suitor, walked into the Superior Retsaurant and sat down at the only vacant table.

On the opposite side sat Mary's husband, John, with Miss Florence Newburg of Lynn, who, Mrs. Sheehan charges, has stolen her husband's love.

"As soon as we sat down," Mrs. Sheehan, who lives with the Countess at 406 Parkway, Revere, "Miss Newburg passed a remark and said, 'For goodness sake, I don't see why we should sit at the table with them.'

PUNCHED IN NOSE.

"I said to her, 'What are you doing with my husband?' He spoke up and said, 'I am not your husband.' Then she threw a glass of water at me and then Helen threw a glass at her. When she did, my husband leaned formward and struck her on the nose. Then followed a regular battle.

"Then, Vaccarro tried to separate us. We got away in the machine and were chased by another car belonging to Johnny Dyer, son of Police Chief Dyer, of Revere. The second car overtook us and we were taken to the police station.

"I'm through with my husband. That Newburg woman has stolen him from me. He is a 'Slikum Cake-Eater.' He goes to dances seven nights a week. I have already begun legal action to secure separate maintenance.

The Countess was held in $5,000 for assault with a dangerous weapon, Vaccarro for assault on Sheehan and Mrs. Sheehan was held for disturbing the peace.

Vacarro, in his suit for the hand of the Countess, was given a year in jail in Chelsea Court, when he is alleged to have badly slashed her face when she refused to wed him.

When Vaccarro appealed the sentence ,the Countess refused to appear and it was placed on file.

Then, a short time later, three shots were fired in front of the Countess's home. She accused Vaccarro, but later her friends declared she herself had fired them.

Vaccarro next went to Boston City Hall and applied for a mariage license to wed the Countess. She refused and said she would never marry him, as "love, razors and bullets" would never mix well.

Within a few days, the Countess herself appeared at Revere City Hall and filed intentions to wed Vaccarro. She said he had threatened to kill her unless she married him.

Then she announced she was to be married to a wealthy Western oil men in New Yoretaolishrdluemfwyp and that she would never marry Vaccarro.

THINKS HE GAVE U. S. TEA HABIT

By UNIVERSAL SERVICE.

New York, Jan. 26.—Sir Charles Higham sailed back to England today.

Sir Charles is confident he has converted Americans to tea drinking.

"I believe I have started the vogue of 4 o'clock tea drinking in the United States," said Sir Charles. "Yesterday I was in four offices where they had, or were serving afternoon—the cup of tea at 4 o'clock which makes for 100 per cent. efficiency in the last business hour."

When asked about his coming marriage to Miss Eloise Rowe of Buffalo, he said it was planned for May. Then he switched back to tea drinking, which led to drinking in general.

"Prohibition," he said. "I saw little of it. I think a modified form of prohibition would be good for the world."

He finds the moral side of the big cities "decidedly improved." He approves of President Coolidge, American advertising men, newspapers and American women.

GEDDES, SAILING, GIVEN 21 GUNS

New York, Jan. 26.—Sir Auckland Geddes, retiring British ambassador to the United States, sailed today on the Aquitania, declaring "understanding and not diplomacy" is the medium through which the two great English-speaking nations may best appreciate each other.

Sir Auckland expressed satisfaction that he was leaving a "clean slate" at the British embassy. The signing of the liquor treaty was his last big job, he said. Asked to interpret the clause in the treaty "an hour's steaming distance from American shores," he replied:

"By the speed of the boat—the engine should tell that—and, if there is doubt, tests could be made and averages struck. The provision will cause no difficulty."

An unusual honor was paid the departing ambassador. As the Aquitania steamed down the bay, the soldiers at Governor's Island fired a twenty-one gun salute.

U. S. WARSHIPS QUIT TAMPICO FOR VERA CRUZ

EQUIPPED WITH U. S. ARMS

Mexican Gunboat to Attack Two Ports Held by the Revolutionists

By Universal Service.

Tampico, Jan] 26.—The United States destroyers Cary and Hull have sailed for Vera Cduz, and the flagship Richmond, with Admiral Magruder, is sailing for Galveston, leaving Tampico free from American warships. The Rebel boats Saragosa and Tampico remain outside the harbor.

Federal troops under the command of General Cordova have defeated the Rebels at San Casiano and at Losnaranjos and have forced them to retreat to Lotone, 76 miles from Amatlan, where they are entrenching. The Rebel general, Moran Joe Moran, is still maintaining headquarters at Zacamixtle.

BATTLE EXPECTED TODAY.

Federal troops are assembling with machine guns received Friday from the United States, with a large amount of cavalry equipment. Cordova now has 4,000 infantry, cavalry and light artillery in his command against 2,000 infantry and cavalry under Moran.

Cordova will attack Sunday and success will mean the Rebels must retreat to Cerro Azul or possibly to Tuxpam River.

The rebels have permitted a concentration of American oil field workers on a lost just north of their lines to work on a well of the Cortez Oil Corporation, which was running wild.

Due to the heroism of Thomas Smith, oil dispatcher at Toteco and A. P. Stephenson, acting field superintendent, who had refused to leave their posts when American oil workers were called into Tampico by their respective companies, the Mexican Seaboard Oil Co., was enables to start flowing its wells into Toteco eighteen hours before any other company.

COLONEL GUERRERO DIES.

Colonel Aureliano Guerrero, chief of the Federal garrison at Victoria, died Thursday in that city as a result of wounds obtained while resisting the revolt of that garrison.

He was the only Federal officer who refused to accede to the rebels and while making a plea to his troops to remain loyal he was attacked by the former officers of the day and guard. He succeeded in killing four of the latter before he fell.

General Benecio Lopez, who led the attack resulting in the recapture of Victoria, is again in full military control of the entire State and has rebuilt the railroad destroyed by the rebels between Forlon and Victoria. Communication to the States via Victoria was resmued this morning.

Mexican Gunboat to Attack Rebel Ports

New Orleans, Jan. 26.—Departure of the Mexican gunboat Bravo for Southern waters to attack the rebel ports of Progreso and Vera Cruz is imminent, the consul general here announced today.

A trial trip will be made on the Mississippi River today to test out her new engines. Marines to complete the complement of the vessel are due tonight via El Paso.

The gunboat will at first attack Progreso, the port of Yucatan, where American interests have large holdings in the sisal industry. This port was taken by the rebels a short time ago when the garrison at Meridia, the capital, revolted and proclaimed the State for do la Huerta.

Obregon Forces Cut Off Rebels From Base

Mexico City, Jan. 26. (AP)—President Obregon's plans for supression of the rebellion in the western zone have been further developed with the capture by General Amaro's troops of Yurecuaro, Zamora and Los Reyes in northern Michoacan. With the capture of the Los Reyes branch, General Amaro has completed the move to cut off the rebels from their base at Guadalajara.

The advance upon Guadadajara continues. La Barca, the next important station, 16 miles west of Yurecuaro and north of Lake Chapala, is expected to be taken without fighting, the Federals says, as their aviators report the rebels have evacuated the town.

Oaxaca Attacked on Three Sides by Federals

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 26.—Oaxaca, capital of the State of that name and a strongly fortified position, is being attacked from three sides by Federal troops under General E. Madrigal.

The city is defended by the troops of General Garcia Vigil.

COUNTESS SALM SAILS, NO KIN TO SAY GOOD-BYE

She Will Hunt New Brand of Monkey in Africa as Count Plays Tennis

TO VISIT ANCESTRAL HOME

Husband Hopes Their Six Months' Absence Will Reconcile Parents

New York, Jan. 26.—Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten and his bride, the former Millicent Rogers, heiress to the millions of the late H. H. Rogers, one of the founders of Standard Oil, sailed for Europe on the Veendam today, expressing the hope their six months' absence would tend to reconcile the count's parents-in-law to their secreat marriage.

The parents, Colonel and Mrs. Henry Huddleston Rogers, were not aboard the Veendam to see the party off. Nor was any other member of the bride's family at the pier or aboard to wish the pair von voyage and a happy honeymoon.

The count, asked if the disapproval of Colonel and Mrs. Rogers had diminished, replied he believed the honeymoon trip would do much to reconcile them to his acquisition to the family.

TO HUNT NEW MONKEY.

The countess, posing for newspaper photographs, decried her recent experiences with news writers.

"I'm so bored with them—bored beyond words!" she ejaculated. "I shall go to Africa while the count is engaging in Olympic tennis play as a member of the Austrian team and try to find a new brand of monkey."

The countess said they first would go to the count's ancestral home, and that her husband later would go to southern France to play tennis with Vincent Richards in preparation for the Olympic games.

SCOLDS HER BROTHER-IN-LAW.

The countess interspersed her remarks to reporters with sharp asides to her brother-in-law, the Count Otto Salm Von Hoogstraeten, who sailed with them. He had misplaced his passport.

"Oh, do be quiet," she admonished him as he complained of the loss. "It's in your trunk and your trunk's in the hold," she said. "I saw to it. Quit your fussing." The passport later was found in the trunk.

Count Otto participated in a polite altercation at the Metropolitan Opera House last night with a stranger, who, attired in a business suit, possessed himself of the one remaining unoccupied chair in the box that had been loaned his party.

An usher settled the dispute by inducing the stranger to depart.

anti-Wilson forces in the 1924 convention at New York.

Reed will not be without support in his fight. Mr. Wilson's trenchant pen has been used to excoriate other Democratic Senators who opposed his policies, notably Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, and Senator Shields of Tennessee, and friends of both these men are friendly also to the present Reed movement. Both Walsh and Shields are candidates for re-election this year. Reed can also count on the Hardwick faction in Georgia, Mr. Wilson's pen having been used freely in accomplishing the retirement of Senator Hardwick from the Senate.

OPPOSED TO LEAGUE.

Senator Reed also has assurances, according to his friends, that the reputed coalition of anti-McAdoo forces in the convention notably the Murphy-Brennan-Taggart organizations from New York, Illinois and Indiana, will "look with favor" upon his candidacy.

AUBURNDALE SHOCKED BY 'RIOT OF GAIETY' AT CASTLE CLUB

'PETTING PARTIES' SCORED BY IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY

Agent Tells Court of Young Girls Under Influence of Liquor and Crying for Mothers—Two Policemen Involved Give Names of Women They Met

John M. J. Groby, chairman of the publicity committee of the Auburndale Village Improvement Association, saw numerous petting parties near the Castle Club, Auburndale, he testified yesterday at the trial of Silvio Grillo and Larry Ross, owners of the club, on the charge of keeping a disorderly house and assuming to be common victualers without license.

The case, being heard by Judge Weston in Newton Police Court, involves young women and members of Newton police force. Yesterday the courtroom was crowded.

POLICE CHANGE STORY.

Groby was cross-examined by Peter C. Borre, counsel for defendants, after Policemen John H. McCormack and John F. Sheridan had retracted previous testimony that they didn't know the two young women with whom they had had a petting party at the club.

McCormack testified he desired to change his testimony that he picked the girls up in a Boston dance hall, also that he did not know their names and that they both lived in Cambridge. He said he lied when he said he did not know the names of the girls. He said he knew the girls five years. He said he also lied when he said their names were Mary and Ethel.

"The reason I lied was to protect the girls," said McCormack.

CITY PAID FOR $40 SUPPER.

Asked by Attorney Borre what he had for supper, McCormack said he had soup, small steak, mashed potatoes, coffee and rolls. eH said he also brought along a pint of booze, which they drank. He was asked if he would be surprised to know that there was no steak on the menu at the Castle Club on New Year's night.

"Well, we had steak," said McCormack.

Sheridan corroborated McCormack's testimony and said the cost of entertaining the girls was $40, which was paid by the city of Newton.

The policemen who had been sent to the club rooms to get evidence, said yesterday, one of the two girls lives on Main street, Watertown, and the other in Cambridge.

They preferred not to give the names in open court and were permitted to tell Judge Weston in confidence. It is believed the girls will appear as witnesses when thte trial is resumed Thursday.

CALLED FOR "MOTHER."

Groby testified he lives on Duffield road, Auburndale, about 300 yards from Castle Club, near Islington road.

"We saw a great deal of drunkenness, heard profanity from different people in the vicinity of the Castle Club, and at times saw people brought out in a drunken condition from the clubhouse," testified Groby. "We saw young women leaning against men and they appeared to be somewhat ill. The case of one girl touched my heart.

"The girl said: 'I want my mother.' I heard a young lady consoling her. I saw a young man sitting in a machine beside her with his arm around her shoulder. She was apparently sick. Another young lady was sitting near her."

Groby said the sight was so pathetic he telephoned the mayor to complain. He was not allowed to tell what he said to the mayor.

"Well, I had a neighbor, Douglas Foster, come with me to look around," continued Groby. "We saw a couple ten feet from us. The young man was embracing the young lady."

He said it was a common sight to see as many as 30 or 40 going to the club nightly.

[illegible] these machines there were men and women, hugging and kissing," added Groby.

Pressed for specific cases Groby said he had knowledge of several such cases between midnight and 1:45 a. m. He said these conditions to which he referred occurred at different intervals, from Hallowe'en in October, 1923, to Jan. 1 and 2, 1924. He said these conditions were so offensive he complained to the police.

"We frequently heard piercing yells, cursing and swearing, in which men and women took part coming from the direction of the Castle Club," said Groby. "They were between midnight and 2 a. m. New Year's Eve, and New Year's Day. After 2 a. m. we saw a machine filled with men and women leave the grounds of the Castle Club, the occupants of which were apparently intoxicated.

Groby testified he could hear the noise from the Castle Club a distance of 450 yards. He said the noise at first appeared as if it came out of a clear sky.

Attorney Borre asked him if he heard the noises while sitting on his cold veranda in the month of December. Groby said he could if he sat there.

Q.—Are you a fresh air fiend? A.—I am.

Q.—Did you know you were trespassing on the Castle Club property when you were detecting these occurrences? A.—I was invited by Harry Chandler to come to the Castle Club and bring my friends. That invitation, given some time ago, has never been withdrawn.

Q.—Mr. Chandler invited you to join the club? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you imbibe any of the ambrosia nectar New Year's night? A.—I did not.

GOT STAGGERING SUPPORT.

Groby described the girls he saw leaving the Castle Club one night as "coming downstairs in a staggering condition.. Somebody was supporting them down stairs. They were suported back again. I wish to modify that by saying the support given them was coupled with a staggering condition."

Q.—Staggering while they were being suported? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—How did you know they were drunk? A.—I got near them and smelled their breaths.

Q.—You were kissed by them? A.—No, sir, I was not; I was near them when I got the odor of liquor from their breaths.

Q.—Do you drink? A.—Occasionally.

Witness said one drink may set a person drunk, that it depended on the size of it. He said at least five persons to his knowledge came out of the Castle Club drunk.

Q.—Were Grillo or Ross of the Castle Club present when you saw these person drunk? A.—No.

Questioned further about the Auburndale Improvement Association, Groby said no motion was passed by that body to take action against the Castle Club. He said Harold Knowlton was head of the Improvement Association, a committee from which discussed the affairs at the Castle Club with him.

COULDN'T IDENTIFY OFFICER

Witness recalled telling some police sergeant and two policemen about the alleged conditions at the Castle Club. Sergeant Leehan, sitting nearby, who is rather bald, was asked to stand up and put on his hat.

Q.—Is that the sergeant? A.—I can't say.

Judge Weston reprimanded Atty. Borre for scolding the witness, who admitted some of the guests he saw leaving the Castle Club on New Year's morning had rattlers and other noise producing favors with them.

The witness was questioned about a signpost announcing the position of the Castle Club placed at Commonwealth avenue for the benefit of automobile parties. He said he opposed the granting of the permit to erect the sign by the district commission.

"This sign designated the district as being the whole Castle Club section," said Groby. "I also opposed the granting of a victualler's license to the club by the Board of Aldermen.

"My moral prejudices were against the sign. My moral prejudices were against the Hallowe'en party and the New Year's party being held at the club."

Q.—Are you prejudiced against the Castle Club? A.—I am.

Duell, Freed by Divorce, Expected to Wed Lillian Gish

This remarkable photograph, showing Mrs. Charles H. Duell and Miss Lilian Gish, the famous film actress, chumming together in the garden of Mr. Duell's estate, illustrates the social intimacy between the Duells and the screen star, which has given rise to reports that Mrs. Duell's divorce suit was filed in order that her husband might be free to marry Miss Gish, who is shown in the picture holding small dog in her arms.

His Love for Dainty Film Star, Her Chum, Believed to Have Induced Wife to Sever Bonds.

Is Mrs. Charles H. Duell, former actress, who has just divorced her husband in Paris, a second Georgette LeBlanc, granting freedom to her mate that be may wed a beautiful and virtuous young girl whom he loves?

Is Lillian Gish that girl?

Friends of the Duells, prominent in New York and Newport, are asking these questions, following a report that the New York lawyer will marry the screen star. They recall that Mrs. Duell and Miss Gish were good friends during their stage days, and that the film actress visited Mrs. Duell at Newport. They recall the case of Maurice Maeterlinck, famous dramatist, divorced by his actress-wife, Georgette LeBlanc that he might marry his secretary, thirty years his junior.

And they are wondering—did Mrs. Duell free her husband because she wanted to be rid of him, or because she thought he wanted to be free?

Duell has been lately travelling in Italy with a motion picture concern which stars Miss Gish. Together the two have been looking over the ground in that country, with a view, it is said, to establishing a studio there.

Rumors of a romance are persistent, although none of the Duell's friends would, or could, confirm them.

In her action for divorce, brought before the famous Seine Tribunal, in Paris, which has unloosed the marital knots of many celebrated Americans, Mrs. Duell charged her husband with desertion and refusal to return and live with her. She produced a letter from him, in which he said he would never resume marital relations with her.

ONLY TWO YEARS WED.

The decree marks the end of a brief married life, which began two years ago with one of the most brilliant weddings in Pennsylvania. The bridegroom was a son of the late Judge Charles H. Duell of the United States Court of Appeals. He belongs to one of the oldest Knickerbocker families; is a cousin of Elihu Root, and was a close friend of the late President Roosevelt. He managed Roosevelt's campaign tour in 1912, when the latter ran on the Progressive ticket.

He is a graduate of Yale, 1911; of the New York Law School, and is head of the firm of Duell & Smith, No. 565 Fifth avenue. He is linked with famous New England history and tradition. One of his ancestors commanded the Minute Men at the Battle of Concord Bridge in April, 1775.

He is a member of several exclusive New York and Newport clubs, among them the Yale, Lawyers' and Hudson River Country clubs, and the Union League. During the war he served as a navy lieutenant on the U. S. S. destroyer Wickes, and after the armistice was a press representative at the peace conference. He made an extended tour into Germany with the French High Commission.

At the time of his marriage he was treasurer of the New York State committee. He was vice-chairman of the American Legion in New York. Such is the illustrious record of the bridegroom.

BELOVED BY FAMILY.

Mrs. Duell before her marriage was Lillian Tucker, well-known stage star. She appeared for a whole season in Chicago in the leading role of "Three Faces East," just before the war. Her father was the late William S. Tucker and her mother, who married again, is Mrs. Charles A. Hall of Pasadena, Cal.

The romance progressed under the happiest auspices. The ormer Miss Tucker was beloved by the bridegroom's family. The engagement was announced in September, 1921, while the actress was in Paris, staying at the Ritz, with Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tucker, brother and sister-in-law of her future husband. She sailed for America immediately, and the marriage took place on Oct. 29, of that year.

It was performed at the home of the William S. Duells, "Hillcroft," in Huntington Valley, near Meadowbrook, Pa. There were three hundred guests, many of whom went by special train from New York.

CHUMMED WITH LILLIAN.

Following her marriage, the bride became a favorite in New York and Newport social circles. One of her close friends of stage days was Lillian Gish, the fragile little screen star who made her first big hit in "The Birth of a Nation," and who is star in "The White Sister," now appearing in Boston. During the Newport season, Mrs. Duell was one of the most popular and sought after hostesses. She entertained considerably. She invited Lillian, her old chum, to visit her. Lillian came. The two were seen in close companionship, at "The Rockery" and elsewhere.

Was this visit the beginning of a change in the connubial relations of the Duells? No one knows. If the lawyer was especially attentive to his wife's guest, it was unremarked, in a circle where "Platonic" friendships abound. Lillian went back to her studio.

But Duell was interested in the motion picture "game," and took a hand in it. He became associated with the Inspiration Picture Company, which starred Miss Gish. It was in this connection that he made his trip to Italy, accompanied by other members of the concern, including the little star.

The first thing their friends knew, Mrs. Duell had brought action for divorce in Paris. So quietly was this done, in fact, that many knew nothing of it until arrival of the dispatches saying a decree had been granted.

Miss Gish, whose climb to fame has been companioned by that of her younger sister, Dorothy, has been the subject of many romantic speculations on the part of the public which admires her.

ACTED AS CHILD.

It is not the first time her name has been mentioned as a prospective bride, but she has thus far resisted all attempts to "marry her off," by her loving public, and has devoted herself to her art. She has been on the stage and screen from the tender age of six years, when she made her debut before the footlights in a drama called "The Little Red Schoolhouse." Her mother, Mrs. Gish, was also on the stage, appearing at Proctor's in New York, after the death of her husband threw on her the support of two little daughters.

Thus she had to stay behind while six-year-old Lillian went on the road. It was a hard wrench for both mother and child, but Lillian was adored by every member of her company, and was showered with kindness. When Christmas came, on that first tour of her young life, the company, assembled in a tiny railway station waiting for a train to their next stand, presented her with a bright new sled. It is one of Lillian's happiest memories.

As a child she chummed with a little girl called Gladys Smith, now famous as Mary Pickford. From a child actress, Lillian decided to learn to dance, and secured an engagement with Bernhardt's company during one of its tours here. aLter she went into pictures, where she made a hit that hed kept her there. At one time she and Mary Pickford appeared together in the spoken drama, both having parts in Belasco's "The Good Little Devil."

Lillian Gish is now twenty-seven years old. She is a hard worker, but somewhat frail, especially following a breakdown which occurred during the war. In 1918 she spent many months in the war zone, with David W. Griffith and his company, making pictures for "Hearts of the World."

This experience affected her nerves and health, so that she was obliged to take a long rest. eHr home is in Los Angeles, with her mother and sister Dorothy.

AT FIRST SHE DEFIED HIM

Yields When He Demands the Firm's Cash "Without Conversation"

A two-gun man, with a black mask and "black piercing eyes," held up Miss Fannie Kaplan, cashier, in the office of the Beacon Coal Company at No. 115 Orleans street, East Boston, late yesterday and escaped with $300.

Miss Kaplan demurred at the bandit's demand that she had over the firm's money but after a second look into the black muzzles of the two guns she weakened and surrendered the cash. The bunman then slipped out the door into the street and escaped.

The cashier described the robber as about twenty-two years old, five feet four inches in height, weighing 140 pounds, with dark complexion, black piercing eyes and wearing dark clothes, a dark cap and a black mask.

The first intimation Miss Kaplan had of his presence was when she heard a demand that she hand over "all the money in the place."

She protested, while her determination already was wavering before the "black,piercing eyes" and the two guns.

"The best thing you can do is to hand the money over and hand it over without any more conversation," the bandt advsed harshly.

Mss Kaplan lives at NoN. 170 Chelsea street, East Boston.

JUDGE RULES $10,000 PROPER LEGAL FEE

Judge Lowell yesterday ruled the services rendered by Atty. Robert Gallagher in the case of Charles M. Brightwell and others involved in the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Co. in Superior Court, were reasonably worth $10,000.

The ruling was made at a hearing on a bill brought by John E. Hannigan, trustee of the Old Colony Company, against Joseph A. Dennison, Gallagher and other lawyers to recover for fees. The hearing will be resumed Tuesday.

LAWMAKER MENACED BY KLAN ASKS GUARD

New York, Jan. 26.—After he had received two more threatening letters today, State Assemblyman Julius S. Berg appealed to police for a body guard, and asked Federal authorities to investigate the latest threats. It was expected a detective would be detailed to guard him.

Berg, who has introduced an anti-Ku Klux Klan bill in the State legislature, said he had received five letters and a number of telephone calls, all menacing in tone. Some of the persons who called him professed to be klansmen, Berg said.

FIRE DAMAGES WINCHESTER CLUB

Part of the locker room in the main building of the Winchester Country Club was destroyed yesterday by a fire which started in the woodshed and burned through the floor to the boiler room.

Prompt action of the Winchester Fire Department, with the assistance of Arlington apparatus, brought the blaze under control in a half hour. Damage was $3,000.

MARINES BATTLE NAVY YARD BLAZE

A sentry discovered the fire, which is believed to have started from the high wind blowing embers from a stove. The Charlestown firemen responded.

60 Injured as Gale Blows Cars Into Collision

New York, Jan. 26.

SIXTY persons were injured, ten seriously, when two trolley cars collided today at Columbia and Woodhall streets, Brooklyn. A strong wind from the river blew a one-man car from its tracks, and it coasted into a larger car.

Fifty of the injured were cut by broken glass thrown in all directions by the collision. Ten badly bruised and cut were taken to hospitals.

MURDER PLOT SUSPECTED IN HARRIS DEATH

Companion Reports Star's Parent Lost Life in Altercation With Taxi Driver

Chicago, Jan. 26.—On the theory that a murder had been committed, the police and coroner's office started an investigation into the death today of Henry Harris, father of Mildred Harris, motion picture star and divorced wife of Charles Chaplin.

Harris died in a South Shore hospital, after a fight last night with a taxicab driver.

With Harris at the time was Carl A. Nyden, Jr., of the real estate firm with which Harris was connected. Nyden told doctors at the hospital that the chauffeur of a taxicab had beaten Harris in an argument after the taxicab ran into Nyden's car.

David Barnosky, thirty, a taxicab driver, was taken into custody. Police said Barnosky was driver of the cab which collided with the car in which Harris was riding and his alleged assaildant.

DOG POISON TOLL IN FALL RIVER 20

Fall River, Jan. 26.—The list of dog fatalities due to poisoning mounted to twenty today when three more complaints were made to the police.

Eight valuable dogs have been killed by an unknown poisoner in the last two days, while twelve were killed a few weeks ago.

All twenty dogs were killed in Fall River's exclusive residential district. Authorities attribute the poisoning to a maniac.

The dogs poisoned last night belonged to C. M. Gordon, 567 North Main street; Frank Donault, 50 Cherry street, and George O'Neill, 123 June street.

BATES WILL RUN FOR CONGRESS, IS REPORT

Mayor Bates, of Quincy, it is reported, will be a Congressional candidate next December, instead of running again for the office of mayor.

The mayor's secretary said many requests have come for Mayor Bates to be a candidate for the House of Representatives, but that he had made no decision in the matter.

HOAGLAND GUILTY IN BONDSMAN CASE

Clarence W. Hoagland was found guilty yesterday, in Charlestown District Court, or registering as surety for Boyd I. Brooks without being a registered professional bondsman.

Testimony showed Hoagland bailed Brooks and was tendered a $15 check for his services, which he did not accept. Sentence was deferred a week.

HAVERHILL MAN ROBBED OF $110

Haverhill, Jan. 26.—Frank Paillon of No. 48 Main street, Bradford, a collector for the Grand Union Tea Company, was held up in an alley near his home early today by a gunman, who got away with $110.

EGYPTIANS WIN RICHES FAKING TUT SCARABS

Peasants So Skillful in Forgeries as to Deceive the Experts

"ANTIKA" PLANTS ABOUND

Genuine Scarab Recently Sold for $500, Porcelain Ring for $125

Luxor, Egypt, Jan. 26 (A. P.)—Discoveries in the Valley of the Kings have given a great fillip to the trade in "Antikas," as the Egyptians call them, for which Luxor has been the headquarters for years.

The main source of supply of genuine antiques, which are far rarer than the forgeries, lies in the peasants who often dig up interesting and valuable pieces in the fields, and in the native diggers employed by the foreign excavators who, despite rigid supervision, are able to do a certain amount of pilfering.

Any peasant finding an "Antika" is compelled by law to hand it over to the local inspector of antiquities, who will buy it, if he so decides, at his valuation, but in most cases the peasants prefer to take their chance with the Luxor dealers.

These dealers can only trade by virtue of a license from the Egyptian government; consequently the gilbertain situation arises whereby the authorities license the dealers to break the law, namely by purchasing antiques from the peasants.

TUT SCARAB BRINGS $500.

The first demand of every foreign tourist is for a relic relating to Tutankhamen. The demand far exceeds the supply to such an extent that even the forgers are unable to keep up with it.

For a genuine Tutankhamen scarab as much as 100 pounds sterling has been realized by one Luxor dealer, while a small porcelain ring is priced at 250 pounds sterling.

These antiques probably come from Telelamarna, site of the city established by Tutankhamen's predecessor, Akhenaton, the heretic king, where the first years of Tutankhamen's reign were spent, as the strict supervision exercised by the excavators at Tutankhamen's tomb in the valley of the kings excludes any idea of pilfering.

Some beautiful "Tut-ankh-amen scarabs" are being turned out by a local "antika" manufacturer, who lives in a picturesque house within the confines of the valley of the kings and whose skill is such that hs scarabs have been accepted repeatedly as genuine, even by experts.

FIRST RAIN IN YEARS.

Denizens of the valley of the kings were astonished today when a sharp shower of rain fell, lasting ten minutes. It was the first rain the valley has seen for several years, and the members of Howard Carter's expedition had to do some quick work to improvise a shelter for the trays stacked nearby for transfer of objects from the tomb.

The tomb was opened only fgor a short time this morning, to allow the removal of the cornices and top and bottom beams of the doors of the second shrine. These were carefully packed in trays to be carried to the laboratory.

CAT BATTLES WOMAN AND COPS

A cat weighing eighteen pounds was an unwelcome visitor at the home of Mrs. Addie Kane, 164 Lexington avenue, East Boston, yesterday. It viciously fought Mrs. Kane and Officers Magaletta and Varner, who came to her aid.

The battle lasted for more than fifteen minutes and Mrs. Kane's face and hands were badly scratched and bitten and the officers' clothes were torn before the infuriated animal was shot.

When Mrs. Kane tried to drive the cat out it sprang at her face, scratching and biting.

The officers responded to her cries for help. Driven into the bathroom the cat jumped through the window to an alley. One of the officers shot the animal. The body was turned over to the Board of Health for examination.

Harvard on Boston Advertising

Women's Wear advertising of Boston leads the country in truthfulness.

This is the opinion of the advertising class of Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration after conducting a survey and examination of newspaper advertising of the cities of Boston, New York, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Cleveland, San Francisco and New Orleans.

The survey was made in co-operation with the Boston Better Business Commission, Inc., an independent corporation supported by local business houses to prevent misrepresentation in advertising and selling.

LENINE'S DEATH OPENS BITTER POLITICAL WAR

Trotzky Insurgents and Communists to Fight for Soviet Control

LEADER'S FUNERAL TODAY

Body to Be Preserved in a Vault, Face Visible to Future Pilgrims

By WILLIAM RESWICK.

Moscow, Jan. 26.—Despite the outward appearance of unification of the Communist Party which immediately followed the death of Nicolai Lenine, there were indications today that fresh dissensions have arisen and that there will be a bitter struggle between the Communist "old guard" and the Trotzky insurgents for control of the government.

Although the Soviet government, headed by Lenine, waged relentless warfare against religion, there will be religious services at Lenine's funeral Sunday. Priests from both the Orthodox church and the new "Living Church of Russia" will participate.

Following the Moscow funeral there will be national services throughout the Republic Monday.

Archbishop Tykhon issued a statement saying Lenine had never been excommunicated by the church and consequently was entitled to a religious funeral. The statement added: "Although we differed intellectually, I have known Lenine intimately and found him to be a king among man, with a Christian soul."

TROTZKY DUE TONIGHT.

Leon Trotzky, commissar for war, who has been in Southern Russia on account of illness, is due to reach here tonight for the funeral.

President Kalenin announced that the body would not be buried, but would be preserved in a vault with the face visible, so that pilgrims from distant parts of Russia or foreign lands could view the countenance in the future.

Lenine's heart and brain will be preserved and kept in a museum.

A mausoleum will be erected in Red square, fronting the Kremlin, where Lenine lived and worked for four years.

"This mausoleum," said President Kalenin, "will be erected amidst the graves of our comrades who fell in the revolutionary struggle."

Despite the general grief over the passing of the Red leader, the political controversy is forcing its way to the front. G. S. Zinoviev, head of the Petrograd (Leninegrad) Soviet and member of the executive committee of the Third Internationale, published an article in the official Bolshevist newspaper, Pravda, containing a report of the Communist leaders' conference.

OPPOSES CONCESSIONS.

The report espouses the policy of the Communist "Old Guard," which opposes "excessive concessions" in order to gain recognition by outside powers. This faction represents the radicals in the Bolshevist party.

"It would be the greatest folly to make excessive concessions in view of the growing complications in the camp of the International Bourgeois," said Zinoview. "Meanwhile we are growing stronger and stronger, even if it is slowly."

Zinovieu criticised Leonid Krassin and Karl Radek for their willingness to make concessions to Great Britain, America, France and Italy in order to gain recognition by those governments.

Lenine's body remained on view throughout the day in Trade Union Hall where thousands passed before the bier.

Moscow, Jan. 26

THE Central Hall, the corridors of the House of Unions and Lenin's bier are heaped with wreaths. If there is one real fresh flower there it is hidden in the mass of artificial ones, for Russia, even in Summer, prefers lasting wreaths made of wax or painted tin.

Some of them are artistic atrocities, but have been ingeniously and painstakingly created.

There is one huge glass case containing painted tin roses, with a tiny electric light in the heart of each flower.

Vatican Has Not Sent Condolences to Russia

Rome, Jan. 26.—Denial was issued at the Vatican today that any message had been sent to Moscow expressing condolences over Lenine's death.

Regardless of his own fortunes, however, it is known that the volatile Missourian plans to wage unceasing warfare against the inclusion in the Democratic platform of any plank that commits his party to America's entrance into the League. To this end he will offer himself as a rallying post for all the anti-Wilson and anti-League forces in the party.

GALLONS OF DRINKS POURED IN SEWER

Leominster, Jan. 26.—Police today poured into sewers 1000 bottles of beer, 20 gallons of moonshine, four gallons of whiskey, two gallons of gin and 28 gallons of mixed liquors, which had been stored by the Leominster police, an accumulation of several raids in many months. Police will ship 120 gallons of pure alcohol to Boston shortly.

Sir Henry Thornton, the president, says this new scheme, "a radio in every worker's home," will humanize business.

It will, and also add power to business. The first message, first comment, will come straight from the boss. Kings of old could not do that."

THE REVEREND DR. STRATTON will build a great religious hotel, as part of his great white temple, close to New York's Great White Way, at a cost of five millions. That will amaze the foxes and birds that had better homes than the founder of Christianity.

Only true Christians will be admitted to the hotel, says Dr. Stratton. Merely writing on the register "Jones and wife" won't be enough. You must be a true Christian, no modernism, no Darwinism.

Frescoes in the lobby, doubtless, will show the whale swallowing Jonah, Joshua stopping the sun in its movement around the earth and "the four angels standing on the four corners of the earth," nothing is more beautiful than faith.

STAGNATION is dangerous, even in fashions. Look around and you see in womankind an ever-shifting kaleidoscope. Short skirts and long, long front, low back—almost no back at all. High heels, tight corsets, wasp waists. Suddenly, no corset, no waist at all.

You rave and protest, but you're wrong. It all means something and has to do with progress.

A FEMALE Egyptian mummy, almost three thousand years old, is found wearing clothes identical with the clothes of Egyptian women today. No fashion change in 3,000 years in Egypt, and no change of any kind, worth while. Stagnation in fashions, stagnation in mind; therefore be reconciled to the dress-maker, emblem of hange and progress.

IN EUROPE as usual there is trouble. Perhaps you saw in that dignified old paper, London Punch, the picture of Monsieur Poincare scattering eight hundred million francs among the little nations, Poland, etc., saying "go and buy yourself some weapons." Old Punch complains that Poincare should have used that money to pay part of what he owes England.

RAISULI, the fighting, marauding ruler of North Africa, believes in the Koran and Mohammed, as Dr. Stratton believes in the Bible of Jonah. Raisuli would not let a Spanish doctor treat him, until he discovered that medical science did not contradict the Koran.

Then he said: "Go ahead," when told that his eighteen-year-old wife, one of many, was doomed to die of tuberculosis, but that his—Raisuli's—dropsy could be cured. Raisuli said, "Allah's will be done." Men are much alike, here or in North Africa.

IRISHMEN predict more bloodshed before real Irish settlement is reached, as though there has not been enough bloodshed there.

"Political and religious intolerance, north and south," are given as the probable causes of trouble.

Our banker—General Dawes over in Europe—trying to decide how much money Germany can pay France, as though that were any business of ours, isn't making much headway.

The French say his plan is nothing but the German "Schacht plan," over again. He proposes a gold mark bank, to get together gold for France. Germany doesn't like that.

GIFTS OF GOLD FOR TOMFOHRDES

Mr. and Mrs. Heinn Tomfohrde, 329 Broadway, Winter Hill, Somerville, observed their golden wedding anniversary last night with a reception at the Fitzedward bungalow. More than 150 relatives and friends were present. The couple received gifts of gold and silverware.

The couple were assisted in receiving by their sons, Hainn Tomfohrde, Jr., of Somerville, Theodore Tomfohrde of Wollaston and their wives, and their only daughter, Miss Edna C Tomfohrde of Somerville.

BOSTON—29 TEMPLE PLACE—MASS.

LYNN MAYOR THREATENS TO TRANSFER EVERY POLICEMAN

LAW MUST BE ENFORCED, HE STERNLY WARNS THEM

Angered by Talk That He and Others Have Been Bribed, He Demands Better Results in Eradicating Vice

Somebody in Lynn invited a friend of Mayor Harland A. McPhetres to "sit in" at a little game

The man who issued the invitation didn't know that his prospective guest was a friend of the Mayor.

Warned against the police, he boasted that city officials had been "fixed."

By this charge, he inadvertently started a "cleanup," which is going to put him and his pals out of business. So says Mayor McPhetres.

The incident was related to a representative of the Sunday Advertiser by Mayor McPhetres, in his office at Lynn City Hall, following a sweeping order to the Lynn police to "clean up" all illegal resorts before they could expect any raise in pay.

WARNED OF RAID.

The place in question, which started all the activity, was raided; but the proprietors were "tipped off," according to Mayor McPhetres, about five minutes before the raid. The Mayor is still looking for the men who accused him of accepting a $100 bribe.

He has ordered the police to get them "if you have to use guns."

Meantime, his attitude on the whole subject is that of the conscientious parent who disciplines his youngster when the latter needs correction, but defends it against the criticism of other parents.

He read the riot act to the Lynn police, addressing them at headquarters at roll call; but in his statement to the Advertiser, Mayor McPhetres declared that Lynn was no worse than other cities, and that he objected strongly to having it brought into the limelight as a "wide-open" city or one harboring unrestrained vice of any sort.

"The Boston papers today," said he, "had accounts of revels held in Boston City Hall. At least, we haven't anything like that. I have received information from time to time of illicit traffic of one sort or another and I try to have the places mentioned cleaned up. We don't want any publicity and object to having Lynn placed in the limelight as a lawless city

DEFENDS HIS CITY.

"Any city with a large population has law breakers The larger the population, the longer the record. There's a law against murder in all cities, but murders are committed. Whenever I hear of the law being broken in Lynn, I intend to go after the offenders. I wish we might do it without the place being advertised as a 'law breaking community.' It is not.

"This raid the other night was conducted after I had received positive evidence on the very best authority. A man who runs a gambling place asked a friend of mine to take part in a game. My friend said to him, 'You'll be pinched,' and the man answered, 'Oh no, we won't be pinched. We're paying the Mayor $100, the chief inspector $75, and two patrolmen $50 each for protection. We're safe.'

This friend of mine came to me with the story. I gave immediate orders to the police to raid the place. Neither I nor any other public official is receiving or has received a penny of bribe money.

"Officers went to the house mentioned, but were unable to obtain any evidence. Five minutes before the raid, twelve men were seen to emerge from the house. They divided, six in one group and six in the other, and stationed themselves nearby, some of them behind a billboard, and watched the raid. I am satisfied that the charges brought against the place were true, but we have not yet been able to prove them. What I intend to nail is this charge, that the Mayor or any other public official is accepting graft.

GETS TELEPHONE "TIP."

"That kind of publicity is harmful. A while ago some charge about vice conditions existing in Lynn was made, and a friend of mine showed me a clipping of it in a Chicago paper. It is inevitable that any large community should have a certain proportion of law breakers, but it is a pity that a cleanup can't be carried on without a lot of unfavorable publicity. Lynn isn't any worse than other cities."

While Mayor McPhetres was talking the telephone rang, and a woman's voice was heard over the wire. He listened attentively, and then said, "Wait a minute until I take down the address we will get after them."

He repeated after her a street and number.

"Thank you," said the mayor. "We appreciate your help, and will have it looked into at once."

Looking up, he continued, "I want to make every citizen feel that it is a part of his duty to report any knowledge he may have of illicit It is only by co-operation that these It is only by co-operation that these things can be cleaned up, and anyone who has knowledge of them and withholds it, is failing in his duty to his city. It is the business of every man and woman in Lynn to help in this matter, and every complaint received is going to be carefully investigated."

BAWLS OUT COPS.

Mayor McPhetres' appearance at police headquarters caused a stir.

Addressing the men as they were lined up for roll call he took them to task for the existence of vice dens, and said that if they were ever to receive the increase in pay which they were asking, they must give proof that they deserved it.

He further criticised traffic police for their manner in admonishing those who violate regulations, and denounced the type of officer who makes his victim feel like "a bent nickel."

DIVA IS HERSELF AGAIN

Geraldine Farrar

FARRAR'S SECRET FIGHT FOR VOICE

Expert Who Rejuvenated It Tells of Diva's Cure for "Charley Horse"

The true story of why Geraldine Farrar abandoned grand opera for the concert stage, exactly what happened to her voice, and the secret of its amazing recovery, is here revealed for the first time—by the man to whom she gives credit for her "rejuvenation."

Temperament (in spite of all that the gossips said) had nothing to do with her sudden retirement. Neither was the golden voice gone; nor did she have a throat operation.

HAD "CHARLEY HORSE."

Here is the secret—Farrar found that she had a "charley horse" on her voice; it got there in much the same way that a football player gets a "charley horse" on his leg, or a baseball player gets a "charley horse" on his arm. Farrar's vocal cords were muscle-bound, her tones needed massaging. That is all a "charley horse" is—a binding or hardening of muscles.

Now scientists and a few celebrated musicians who know the facts are astonished at the WAY in which Miss Farrar's vocal "charley horse" was cured. And a short, rather distinguished looking gray-haired man, Albert Ruff—specialist in "broken voices"—has been invited by New York physicians to demonstrate in clinics his new "miracle."

VOCAL GYMNASTICS.

When Miss Farrar found her voice losing power in 1921 she first sought the aid of famous physicians. They could do nothing; they said the vocal cords were normal.

Then she found a man whose ears, scientists say, are so super-sensitive that he could locate the trouble hidden beneath the apparently normal cords. Under his direction the diva took her voice for hours each day to what might be called a vocal gymnasium. She had it massaged and flexed, just as we have our bodies strengthened with gym work. Only the massaging was done by the muscles themselves instead of by hand or a machine. The cords were readjusted in a way never before tried.

Now Albert E. Ruff, in an exclusive interview, tells the facts: how Geraldine Farrar came to him, distracted, after visiting her own physicians; how he discovered the cause of her diminishing voice and eradicated the "charley horse".

"In Geraldine Farrar's case," he explains, "I relied entirely on my knowledge of the vocal muscular system, not only on the muscles themselves, but also on the fibrous continuation from one muscle to another.

MUSCLES HARDENED.

"After trying the voice, which was in very bad condition, I concluded that her whole trouble lay in a misplacement of the fibrous continuation of the tyroid arytenoid muscle into the so-called vocal cords.

"Her method of singing did not mean wrong interpretation, diction or dramatic musicianship. All these had been taught her wonderfully well. It meant wrong manipulation of the vocal muscular system.

FOUGHT IN SECRET.

"In remedying the defect I first ascertained that Farrar's cords were properly focused for each tone, achieving this by having her sing the softest tones with a very relaxed throat.

"I had to be very careful not to force the voice into place before I was sure that the muscular system was functioning correctly when she sang low tones. If I had neglected that the 'charley horse,' or cramped condition of the muscles, would have shown at once.

"When I felt sure that the tones were in place I took the next step. Exercises were prescribed of a sort that I thought suited the case. I sat with my eyes closed and listened to Farrars' voice day in and day out, while I engaged in mental research that would suggest more progressive exercise. I then worked slowly, until the voice yielded to the softest pianissimo, with a completely relaxed throat, throughout the whole compass. The voice, you see, was 'massaging' the muscles."

POLICE GUARD AGAINST RIOT OVER KU KLUX

Klan to Make New Attempt to Organize at Concord, N. H.

PROTEST MADE TO MAYOR

King Kleagle Issues Call for a Meeting on Tuesday Night

Concord, N. H., Jan. 27.—King Kleagle F. Eugene Farnsworth of the Maine Ku Klux Klan, will be the principal speaker at the opening of the membership drive of the klan at Phenix Hall Tuesday evening.

During the week cards have been distributed all over the city bearing the inscription: "Are you interested in knowing more about the Ku Klux Klan? Are you a native, white, Gentile, Protestant American? If so attend the meeting at Phenix Hall Tuesday evening."

A number of citizens protested to Mayor Willis H. Flint, asking that the use of the hall be denied, but he refused to prevent the meeting.

The last attempt of the klan to start a membership drive in this city was a failure, only twenty-five persons attending the meeting. It is expected a large number of klan adherents and hecklers will attend Tuesday night's meeting. Police have been warned to watch for trouble.

Klan Moves to Drop the Mask or Disband

Atlanta, Jan. 26.—Elimination of the mask and changes in the present form of government will be proposed when Ku Klux Klansmen gather here Feb. 26 in response to a call for a national Klan Congress, according to the Atlanta Constitution.

The congress was called by E. Y. Clarke, imperial giant, to "bring about drastic reforms within the order, and in event such cannot be accomplished, to discuss ways and means of disbanding."

Self-government for each State, election of a dragon for each State and election of the imperial wizard by an electoral college after a preferential primary by local organizations will be proposed by Klan leaders.

Klan Seen as Menace to Democratic Party

New York, Jan. 26.—Ku Klux Klanism was pictured today as more of a menace to the Democratic party than to the Catholic church, by Father Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the 165th Regiment.

"Southern bigotry against Catholicism is the harmful influence in the party," Father Duffy said in an address at the weekly meeting of the National Democratic Club.

THOUSANDS VIEW ROYAL WEDDING

purple silk decorated with designs of pine. Trees and tortoises, symbols of long life. A long robe, known to Japan as the uchiginu, and the itsutsuginu, or fifth dress, were of rich silk handsomely embroidered.

In the case of the prince, the Hakama, which formed a train, were of pure silk.

The bride carried a fan of gilded wood on which appeared paintings of flowers of all colors. The fan was so carried the bride might give and receive with it, as it is not permitted to touch sacred things with one's own hands.

LIKE CIVIL CEREMONY.

Accompanying the regent were the sceptre and crown. The shrine itself was decorated with offerings of fruit and chrysanthemums.

The ceremony was comparatively simple, being comparable to a civil wedding in Christian countries, according to Japanese students. The official public celebration had been postponed until later in the year, owing to the country's mourning. The public ceremonial will include a great banquet attended by court officials and diplomats.

The object of the banquet will be to make official announcement to the people and to foreign powers of the fact that the heir to the throne has been wedded.

Tremendous crowds greeted the prince and his bride as they passed to and from the palace before and after the ceremony. Flags were flown from many buildings, even the refugee barracks in the public parks being gaily decorated. Many of the spectators climbed upon great piles of debris left by the earthquake and fire in September to catch sight of the wedding procession.

IMMIGRATION BILL WOULD CUT QUOTA

Washington, Jan 26.—Extension of the present 3 per cent. imigration law to 1930, with the quota changed to 1 per cent. of the 1890 census, was proposed in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Cable, Republican, Ohio.

The qota is applied to Canada and Mexico. The reduced quota would cut the number of imigrants to be admitted from 523,000 to about 125,000 a year.

JUDGE ACCUSES ATTY. BRESNAHAN

Cambridge Attorney Tried to Victimize Court, Declares Stone

Stephen Bresnahan, Boston and Cambridge attorney, one of the leading figures in the case that led to the removal of Nathan A. Tufts as District Attorney of Middlesex County, was rebuked in Middlesex District Court yesterday by Judge Arthur P. Stone. He accused the attorney of attempting to victimize the court.

Bresnahan had presented an assignment paper for the signature of the judge. The assignment did not contain the name of the assignee or his signature. The attorney had appeared in court several days ago representing a man who was charged with non-payment of a debt and when the lawyer agreed to have his client assign certain stocks, which he owned, to the plaintiff, Judge Stone dismissed the charge.

"You have handed me an assignment without the name of the assignee," the court said angrily "Now will you name him?"

Bresnahan refused, whereupon Judge Stone announced:

"I hereby direct that all papers in this case be impounded and I will personally present this matter to the Massachusetts Bar Association for such action as that body deems meet."

CHURCH MARKS 200TH BIRTHDAY

Indians Once Worshipped in East Bridgewater Unitarian House

The First Parish in East Bridgewater, known as the Unitarian Church, celebrates its two hundredth anniversary today.

This morning the pastor, Rev Frank S. Gredler, will preach on "The Three Covenants of Our Church." At 4 p. m. there will be a special service. Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D., president of the American Unitarian Association, will be one of the speakers.

The parish dates from 1724. A small meeting house was completed that year. Indians were numbered among those who worshipped there. In 1754 a new church was built. In 1794 the present building was erected on the same site as the first. In 1850 this building was turned round, so that instead of facing west it now faces south. In 1900 a parish house was added to the church. The church boasts of a Paul Revere bell, installed in 1805.

HARVARD SHAMED BY 2 BOOTLEGGERS

Judge Fines One $100, the Other $50; Calls Law Students a "Disgrace"

Fred S. Herrington and Roland T. Kinney, Harvard law students, convicted in Middlesexx Court, East Cambridge, yesterday of bootlegging at Harvard University, were characterized by Judge Stone as "nothing but common, ordinary bootleggers such as the liquor squad brings in here every day."

In reply to a request that the students be allowed to enter a plea of nolo on the ground they were members of good families and a conviction would result in their being dropped from the university, Judge Stone said:

"The plea of nolo will not be accepted. These men are a disgrace to Harvard, especially in view of the fact that they are law students."

The police seized two and one-half gallons of whiskey and many empty bottles.

AUTHOR'S EMBITTERED WIFE TO SEEK REVENGE WITH PEN

Mrs. Ludwig Lewihson Insists Husband's 'Don Juan' Was Drawn from His Experience with Her and Alleged Rival

Weeping and lamenting, Bosworth Crocker writes from morning till night. When the last page of her manuscript is typed, she will dry her tears and take revenge.

For Bosworth Crocker is a woman—a woman with a broken heart and a nom de plume. And the book she is writing is going to upset the equilibrium of the famous Ludwig Lewihson and his sweetheart.

WIFE'S REVENGE.

You may have heard of Bosworth Crocker, too, although comparatively few people know that she is really Mrs. Ludwig Lewihson. She writes one-act plays, and the critics say she has a "virile touch." They all think she is a man, and this revelation of her identity will surprise many of them.

The name of the book upon which Bosworth Crocker labors is "Mrs. Don Juan." It will be an astounding sequel to "Don Juan," and will portray the domestic life of the two authors. This time the innings will be all Mrs. Lewihson's.

When Lewishon published "Don Juan" his intimate friends all knew that it was a story of his own unusual love affair. It told all about little Thelma Spear of Burlington, Vt., who had stolen his heart away; and it set forth his attempts to persuade Mrs. Lewishon to divorce him in order that he might marry Thelma.

Mrs. Lewihson did not realize that it was actually the story of their three lives, until she found one day a scrap of a letter her husband had written to Miss Spear.

"I have commemorated our love," he wrote, "in golden prose."

Then she started suit for divorce, and the same day she began the story of "Mrs. Don Juan." If the "Mrs." version is half as frank as "Don's" own tale it will leave the literary world gasping.

To begin at the beginning: Little Thelma Spear left Burlington one Summer's day two years ago to go to New York to study singing. She hadn't been there very long, when a copy of "Up Stream" fell into her hands.

SOUGHT OUT AUTHOR.

It was Ludwig Lewihson's first remarkable book, and told the story of his struggles as a poor emigrant boy in a strange land. It was a gripping book, and it touched Thelma's tender little heart. She made inquiries about its author, and learned that he was editor of a New York periodical.

So one Saturday morning she got all dressed up and journeyed down to his office. She sent in her card with a little note, explaining that she had been greatly impressed by the book, and would love to meet Mr. Lewihson. He was flattered, of course.

She was shown into his private office. They shook hands cordially, and chatted for an hour or so. They discovered they had much in common, and then Mr. Lewihson invited her out to lunch.

"She isn't even pretty," declares the angry Mrs. Lewihson. "She's short and pudgy, with a round moon face. But she captivated my husband. He took her to restaurants and the theatre; and friends have told me they were seen sitting in Central Park, acting like a couple of rustic lovers."

And that wasn't all, according to the separation papers. There are specific charges of misconduct. Lewihson didn't offer a defense in court.

"Don't let my wife enter all that dirt," he pleaded. "I'll pay whatever alimony is deemed proper, but I can't bear to have the thing hashed over for the benefit of the curious and vulgar."

Therefore the papers were assembled in the judge's office, and now the decision is reserved until the judge has time to carefully consider all aspects of this unusual case.

Now listen to the startling parallel between the story of "Don Juan" and the really truly triangle that went to court:

LOVE GROWN COLD.

The hero of the book, after eight years of married life, finds that his love for his wife has grown cold. He has fallen in love with a very much younger woman just exactly as Lewihson admits having done.

Then the hero begs his wife to divorce him, in order that he may marry the girl. The wife in the story refuses to do so. And that, too, is what really happened. Lewihson pleaded with Mrs. Lewishon to divorce him, but, not believing in divorce, she steadfastly refused.

In the opening chapter of the novel, the hero, Lucien Curtis, sums up his wife, Elsie, in the following words:

"She loved him, and yet she was unyielding. She had never turned her head to be kissed, or offered to perform some little service for him, or to fetch a book, or hold his coat, or run her fingers through his hair, or put her hands over his eyes, or soothe him with words.

"She had accepted all the serviceableness of love from him, not only as a matter of course, but with acrid watchfulness."

REFUSED DIVORCE.

Then, when the wife of the novel refused to give the hero a divorce, the author quotes her as saying, "I shall never give you a divorce—never, never, while I live. My whole life is bound up with yours. Why should I divorce you? I have done no wrong. It's you that wants to be unfaithful to me. Why should you have what you want? Why should I be left desolate? Why? Tell me that."

And that, Mrs. Lewihson admits, is, in substance, what she did say.

The hero talks over the situation with a friend who speaks of the laws which govern divorce. He says:

"Why, man, look the situation in the face. Take New York State. Divorce is granted only on the so-called statutory grounds. That is crazy enough. But what is crazier is this:

HIS PHILOSOPHY

"You can misconduct yourself all the way from the Battery to Dyckman street, and be just where you were, unless your wife chooses to sue.

"And if the suit isn't brought quickly, the judge will say the action had been condoned, and refuse to grant a decree.

"The result is that all decent people practice collusion, which on the punitive theory of divorce is forbidden to law."

Both Curtis' wife and his father try to make him break with the girl. But he justifies his love for her, following a tirade by his wife, as follows:

"You start with the assumption, Elsie, that love is evil, that it must be excused and purified by law and by permanence. But that isn't true. If the impulse of two people toward each other is fresh and strong and mutual love between them is not impure."

Mrs. Lewihson says her husband made her an alluring financial offer if she would divorce him, but she refused. Then he begged, she says, to bring Miss Spear into their home to live, and proposed that he divide his attentions evenly between them.

"But I indignantly repulsed the proposal," she says.

Eventually the book husband leaves his wife and sails for Europe, to seek consolation and a fresh start in solitude.

Now Lewihson's friends are all wondering if he will be taking passage soon for other lands.

Pigs' Squeals Lead Way to Liquor Cache

Fitchburg, Jan. 26.

PIGS on the farm of Frank Galus, on the Sheldon road, today literally and figuratively "squealed" to the police when they visited the farm in search of liquor. Sergeant Wallace and Patrolmen Grant, Fitzgerald and Donovan were about to give up the search when they noticed the pigs eating snow and afterward acting queerly.

The police investigated the vicinity and found recent footprints which led them to uncover a burlap bag containing ten gallons of moonshine neatly done up in pint bottles. They also found a keg with the bung knocked out, and which evidently had contained the moonshine before it was bottled.

BAPTISTS TO HOLD 3-DAY SESSION

The conferences celebrate the acquisition of 218 more Baptist missionaries and the erection of 70 new buildings.

New York, Jan. 26.

DR. WILLIAM H. McCASTLINE, Columbia University medical officer, reported that a frequent cause of ill health among the students is their attempt to make courses for which they are not adapted.

Dr. McCastline found that "the resultant mental strain and lack of stimulating interest in the subject are directly responsible for the nervous conditions from which these students suffer."

EDWARDS SOUNDS CALL TO CAPITAL

At Bonus Meeting Will Urge Sweeping 'War Draft' Resolution

Maj. Gen. Edwards, commander of the State Department of the American Legion, will urge a resolution favoring drafting capital and labor in event of another war, at the mass meeting he has called for next Sunday afternoon in Mechanics' Hall to discuss the soldiers' bonus.

The resolution will be worded substantially as follows: "That automatically on the declaration of war, every man, woman, boy and girl of liberal ages, including capital devoted to essential industries, particularly the making of munitions, be drafted."

Among speakers who will urge a bonus bill will be Hanford MacNider, past national commander; Aaron Sapiro, chairman of the Legion's legislative committee in Washington, and Senator David I. Walsh.

"The object of the meeting," reads a bulletin sent out yesterday by Gen. Edwards, "is to acquaint the great public with the truth as to the adjusted compensation.

"We will tell the public that we are just as much in favor of tax reduction as any other citizen, but we will show that the promised adjusted compensation is easily reconcilable with the tax reduction."

SLEUTHS HUNT ANDERSON'S MYSTERY MEN

JURY TO GET CASE TUESDAY

Anti-Saloon League Head Faces Term in Sing Sing if Convicted

New York, Jan. 26.—Detectives from the office of District Attorney Banton today searched through directory and hotel records of New York and Baltimore in an effort to locate the mysterious stranger, "John T. King," the generous friend who gave William H. Anderson, nationally known dry leader, on trial on charges of forgery, $25,000 as a gift.

A search was also being made for the equally mysterious "Henry Mann," publicity agent to whom Anderson said he gave the $25,000 to further the cause of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, of which the accused man is superintendent.

Supreme Court Justice Tompkins excused the jury for today. The case will be reopened Monday. Only a few character and rebuttal witnesses remain to be heard. It was expected the fate of Anderson would be in the jury's hands not later than Tuesday afternoon.

Anderson is accused of ordering alterations on the books of the dry organization. The alterations, the State charges, made it possible for the dry leader to defraud the league, the State and the Government, in that amounts paid as salary were changed to read expense, on which income tax did not have to be paid.

Anderson, in his own defence, told of receiving $25,000 from King—a man he did not know who called him a "darn fool," admitting that he (King) "liked darn fools."

If convicted, Anderson faces a sentence of from two and one-half to five years in Sing Sing.

Mary Miles Minter. Mildred Harris Chaplin.

Mournful Comedian, Usually Busy Denying Engagements, Now Has to Worry Over Black Eye, a Cafe Brawl and Suit He's Bringing Against the Donor.

When divorced wife encounters divorced husband in a restaurant, what happens?

That's what filmdom wants to know. It knows that Charlie Chaplin is nursing a black eye and threatening to prosecute the man who gave it to him, following an incident in which Mildred Harris, motion picture star, the former Mrs. Chaplin, figured at the Club Petrouska in Hollywood.

It knows that suddenly, like a bolt out of a clear sky, words arose and blows were exchanged. But the subject of the quarrel remains a mystery.

OIL MAN SUSPECTED.

One report is that Chaplin rushed to the defence of his former wife when he heard a slighting remark. That the spirit of chivalry flamed up when he saw the frail beauty which he had once loved and cherished, subjected to rudeness, and that he struck a blow for the girl who, not so long ago, was charging him with neglect and desertion.

The man who "mixed it" with Charlie is said to be C. C. Julian, well-known oil promoter.

Following the encounter, Chaplin declared that he would prosecute the man responsible for it, "if necessary."

"The good name of the motion picture industry is again at stake," declares the comedian-producer, referring to recent incidents at Hollywood which have resulted in placing certain screen actors and actresses under a cloud. "The members of my party are being put in the same unfortunate light that Miss Edna Purviance has been manoeuvred into in the Dines-Greer case."

DEFENDS EDNA PURVIANCE.

He has stoutly defended Miss Purviance, his leading woman ever since he became famous in pictures, from the obloquy which attached to the recent shooting of Courtland Dines by Mabel Normand's chauffeur a few weeks ago. Miss Purviance was a guest at Dines' apartment with Mabel Normand when the affair occurred.

His friendship with the charming blonde actress has outlived numerous romances in which Charlie's name has been linked with some of the fairest feminine idols of the screen. He has had one wife, several reported fiancees, and has the rest of the time been kept busy denying that he was, ever had been or ever would be married to this or the other stage beauty.

He wishes people would let him remain an artist, and not try to worry him into becoming a husband again. Since the apparent breaking up of his romance with Pola Negri, he has not been engaged to anyone, but has been very busy producing "A Woman of Paris," in which Miss Purviance starred. With Pola it was "off again, on again" so many times attempt to blackmail him for $100,000 on the charges of a young girl, that the admirers of both refuse to believe the engagement is actually "off" until one or the other weds somebody else.

LINKED WITH EDNA.

Charlie's first love, according to an interview, was at the "Penrod" age, when he developed a case of "calf love" for a young lady who is understood to have flouted him. Charlie says he used to walk to and fro by her windows, admiring himself in the role of despondent suitor.

When Edna Purviance appeared in custard pie comedies with Chaplin, the "beloved vagabond" of the screen, rumor repeatedly declared the pair would one day marry.

Their friendship remained platonic, however, and the first thing the film world knew, Mildred Harris, pretty young star, only seventeen years old, had become Mrs. Charles Chaplin in a secret marriage four months before. A baby boy was born to the couple, but it died, and after that they became estranged. The actress charged him with desertion and non-support, and they were divorced in 1921, Miss Harris receiving $200,000 in settlement, and agreeing not to use his name in her profession.

From that time on public speculation has been busy. Among the reported favored ones destined to become Mrs. Chaplin No. 2 were mentioned: May Collins, Broadway stage and screen star; Claire Sheridan, sculptress of international reputation, and writer; Lenore Ulric, stage beauty, star of "Kiki" and "Tiger Rose," and Claire Windsor, blonde beauty of the silver screen.

The comedian was innocently brought into distasteful limelight a year or two ago by a fifteen-year-old girl from Mexico City, who called herself Marina Vega. She was taken to a Los Angeles hospital after telling police that she had swallowed poison because she was ejected from Chaplin's room. The actor, who was at the time engaged to Pola Negri, took her in his own car to the hospital, accompanied by his fiancee. He told the authorities that the girl had made three attempts to enter his

The Club Petrouska "mixup" was not the first in which Charlie has been a victim. During his married life he had a fistic encounter in Los Angeles with Louis Mayer, at that time manager of Mrs. Chaplin. The two met in the lobby of a hotel and Charlie stepped up to the manager and said, "Remove your glasses." Mayer did so, and Charlie struck him.

TRYING SECRET MEDIATION IN BRITISH STRIKE

Premier MacDonald Makes Overtures to Break Railway Deadlock

LOSS IS NOW $10,000,000

Subway Workers in London Threaten to Walk Out in Sympathy

London, Jan. 26.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald's new Labor government is attempting secret mediation of the national strike of railway locomotive engineers and firemen, it was learned this afternoon.

New proposals for ending the strike, drawn up by the engineers and firemen's union, were handed to the Ministry of Labor this afternoon, to be submitted to the railway companies.

While some of the strikers have returned to duty, the movement is not yet broken.

PLANTS CLOSING DOWN.

Industries have begun to feel the full force of the rail strike. Many plants have been compelled to close down and others have given notice to their employes they will not reopen Monday.

The industrial loss from the strike during its first week is put at more than $10,000,000.

Premier Macdonald today ordered removal of the wooden barriers erected in Downing street to protect the Premier's official residence from Sinn Feiners and riotous unemployed workers.

These wooden bulwarks were built in 1920, when mobs of Sinn Feiners and unemployed men and women were making riotous scenes at the entrance of Downing street. The police guard within the old mansion also has been removed.

Premier MacDonald will meet his Cabinet again for further discussion of Russian recognition.

REACHING OUT TO LEAGUE.

In the meanwhile he is making plans for closer co-operation between Great Britain and the League of Nations. He has instructed Under Secretary Margaret Bondfield, the only woman member of the government, to attend the meeting of the International Labor Commission in Geneva Monday.

Premier MacDonald's message to India, warning all malcontents against disorders, was printed today and attracted wide attention because the Premier denounced all revolutions. He urges reforms by peaceful political methods and normal evolution.

Any changes in the Indian government, the Premier stated, must be peaceful and constitutional.

The new labor government is moving cautiously. So far it has not tackled the unemployment problem—the most vital domestic issue confronting it.

NEW COAL WAGE PACT BARS STRIKE

Washington, Jan. 26.—A new wage agreement in the bituminous coal fields, to replace the one expiring April 1, will be negotiated without recourse to a strike, according to information reaching Washington today.

Scale committees representing operators and miners will meet in Jacksonville February 1 and are expected to reach an agreement on a two-year basis.

ELEVATED BUSSES TO CITY POINT

A bus service from Edward Everett square, Dorchester, to the Headhouse, City Point, South Boston, from May 30 to October 12, has been authorized by the Boston Elevated trustees, who have notified General Manager Dana to make the arrangements.

Single fare will be five cents with privilege of paying ten cents and getting transfer to surface lines.

REPEAL ADVOCATES LENGTHEN LEAD IN VOLSTEAD POLL

2,790 READERS OPPOSE ITS STRICT ENFORCEMENT

Only 516 Demand That Public Be Required to Live Up to Letter of Prohibition Law

By a majority of more than 6 to 1, Advertiser readers have expressed their desire for a repeal of the Volstead act, by means of the Volstead act contest conducted for the past several weeks by this newspaper.

A total of nearly 5,000 voters have cast their ballots to date, 4,909, to be exact. Of this number 3,778 favor repeal of the Volstead Act, while 620 favor the law.

Nearly 3,000, or 2,949 persons, have expressed their preference for beer and light wines, while 547 oppose this proposal. Only 516 persons favor strict enforcement of the present prohibition laws, while 2,790 oppose strict enforcement.

HAVE YOU VOTED YET?

Many and varied are the letters which accompany the ballots. Let the ADVERTISER know how you stand on this all-important question by clipping out and marking the ballot found elsewhere on this page, and sending it to the Volstead Editor, Boston Advertiser, No. 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass. Send a letter along with the ballot, expressing your sentiment on the question.

Onward to our shining motto,
And a blameless land our aim;
Pressing onward, upward, for Enforcement, to obtain.

"The open defiance throughout our country of our law enforcement, realized by one's observation and proved by the recent work of the investigators of the Boston Daily Advertiser, shows there is but one point to follow: No. 3 on your ballot.

"Give us ample money to work for prohibition enforcement. We must have men filling these offices who will perform the duty of the office. Why discriminate between our laws? Why overstep one more than another? The non-enforcement of our prohibition law is an open door to destruction for our rising generation. To the present lawbreakers, it is a source of ridicule and an open defiance to our constitutional laws. We prohibitionists should secure such brave, trusty, fearless men as we find proven in the person of Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler, to come into our cities and towns, especially our small towns. It is a fact prohibition is wanted and voted for by the rum-runner, the bootleggers, the moonshiner and the lawbreaker. They do not want investigation, enforcement and publicity, and pay big money to prevent it."

WANTS LAW REPEALED.

A Providence, R. I., man writes:

"Why should the tax payers of the United States be taxed for a law that the people do not want or will not try to enforce? Almost every home is a brewery or distillery, with children watching their parents making beer and inviting their friends to come and try their brew and see if it is better than what their neighbors make. Give the people back their rights, the States and cities their license money and stop this bootleg business. If the country was put to a referendum vote it would go dry, as the salooned bootleggers would work to have it, as they are getting rich while the country is growing poorer, spending money foolishly on this farce. I hope this Congress will repeal the Volstead Act."

A Portsmouth, N. H., reader writes:

"Repeal the idiot's law! Have no half-way measures! Repeal it, and then enact a sane law, similar to Canada's. A sheriff in Maine, sworn to enforce all laws, convicted of bootlegging and conspiracy to defeat the Volstead Act. Two years in jail. A farce! Then a poor girl in Virginia, convicted of moonshining, given thirty-four years in jail. Bah! It's sickening."

WOMAN DISLIKES LAW.

A Waterville, Me., woman writes:

"The Volstead Act is the most crazy stunt that the fanatics ever put over, and it is about the right time for red-blooded men and level-headed and broad-minded women to get together and bring this farce to an end.

"The only way is to bring the country back to its right to freedom and not make it a laughing stock to other nations. The thing to consider is that as long as grain and fruit grows there will be liquor in this country and we will have it. We prefer it legally, of course, but if not legally, illegally—but we will have it.

"It is too bad to have spoiled the bootleggers' and prohibitionists' chances of making a living, and they are playing together pretty well. But wine at the bootleggers' prices is pretty expensive, and a decent bottle of beer is hard to get, as they do not deal so much in the latter. Wish there were more in Congress like Senator Reed of Missouri, and less with the spine of a jelly fish."

CRACKSMAN SHOT TO DEATH AT SAFE

Minneapolis, Jan. 26.—Trapped in the basement of a Pigly Wiggly grocery store, Peter C. Johnson was shot and killed today as he and a companion were cracking the store's safe.

Faced with flashlights and guns of a police squad, Johnson was given the oportunity to surrender or fight.

He decided to fight. While he was levelling his revolver Policeman Kramer fired, the bullet crushing through the bandit's face, killing him instantly.

DEATH OF CHILD DUE TO NEGLECT

Facts concerning the discovery of the body of a baby in a trunk owned by a twenty-one-year-lod maid in the Brookline home of Samuel Borofsky, Boston lawyer, have been referred to District Attorney Williams of Norfolk county.

The young unmarried mother, whose name is Peters, died a few days ago in the Homeopathic Hospital.

The medical examiner said the child's death was due to neglect.

SUICIDE AND STRANGE 'CURE' IN GEM THEFT

Jewels Worth $350,000 Stolen From Mrs. Schoellkoff Recovered in West

ILL LUCK FOR ROBBERS

Amazing Revelations in Holdup of Rich Woman in New York City

New York, Jan. 26.—A suicide, a miraculous recovery from paralysis and a mysterious trip to Denver enter into an amazing story of the recovery of $86,200 worth of the jewels stripped from Mrs. Irene M. Schoellkopf on New Year's Eve, 1922.

It is expected the rest of the $350,000 in jewels taken from her when she was set upon by the three robbers after leaving the New Year's Eve party of Frank B. Carman will be recovered within ten days.

The recovery was made tonight by District Attorney Banton. He gave high praise to Detectives Martin S. Owens and Thomas Horan and Inspector Coughlin.

Except for a wrist watch, valued at $1,200, all of the jewels recovered were found in a sealed jar in Denver, where they have been kept since a few days after the robbery. The rest of the jewels are hidden in at least nine cities.

SUSPECT CONFESSED.

The story has its real beginning in the arrest of Matthew D. Biddulph shortly after the robbery. Biddulph, one of the trio who rented an apartment from Carmen, friend of Mrs. Schoellkopf, confessed his part in the robbery and implicated Eugene Moran and Albert Hurwitch. Moran and Hurwitch were arrested late in the Summer and were committed to the Tombs in default of $100,000.

Soon afterward they were indicted. They knew that Biddulph, because of the aid given to the authorities, had been sentenced to only six years in Sing Sing. Through their attorney, Abraham Goodman, they offered to enter a plea. They promised to tell what had happened to the jewels.

The district attorney insisted they first plead to first degree robbery and then he would talk with them. They did so.

Both Moran and Hurwitch made extended statement before the grand jury.

MEETS THE VICTIM.

This is their story in substance, as told by Moran:

"The night of the robbery Biddulph or Marshall, went into the Carmen party and made the acquaintance of Mrs. Schoellkpf.

"When she left Carmen's apartment it was Biddulph who dragged her into our apartment below. While Hurwitch and I held her, Biddulph stripped the jewels from her. He was very rought and both Hurwitch and I protested.

"Following the robbery we jumped in an automobile which we had waiting. We drove to Gedney Farms and there took the jewels from Biddulph. Hurwitch and I returned to Fordham from where we telephoned to John W. Mahan, a jeweler. I told him we had the swag and made arrangements for him to meet us later in the day to deliver it to him. I kept the wrist watch.

"The price he promised was $37,500 in cash. He paid us $10,000 and promised to deliver the rest next day."

On this information Detectives Horan and Owens went to Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 13, for Mahan, who had gone to that resort for his health. He returned without extradiction.

He told the detectives he always considered the Schoellkopf jewels "bad luck stuff." By the time he got back to New York his blood pressure had run up to 120 and his right hand and arm were paralyzed. He suffers from arteric sclerosis.

On Nov. 2 he had read of the suicide of Henry Hirsch, his partner.

By the time Mahan got back to New York it was feared he would die. He was taken to a hotel and four physicians were called in attendance. He began to tell his story and fainted. A cup of beef tea was procured for him. He took it and raised it alone to his lips. He sat up in bed and said:

"See, it is the hand of God. I am purging my soul and this is the result. This is the first I have been able to raise my hand in months."

On Saturday, January 19, he, Detective Owens, and F. T. Harris, secretary to C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf, Buffalo multimillionaire and husband of Mrs. Schoellkopf, left the Grand Central Terminal on the Twentieth Century Limited. None but Mahan knew their destination. Mahan took the party to Denver and then proceeded to the jewel jar. The possessor of it did not know its contents.

Among the jewels recovered were pearls taken from the $200,000 pearl necklace. The biggest and most valuable of these was in the jar. Mrs. Schoellkopf had paid $47,500 for this pearl.

Sign on Safe Tells Bandits Cash Is Gone

Waterloo, Jan. 26.

THE firm of Curle & Bagshaw, coal and lumber dealers with offices in Church street, is taking no chances of burglars wrecking the safe in the office. Pasted on the front of the strong box is a sign which reads: "This safe is unlocked." A similar sign appears on the cash drawer.

WRIGHTS FIFTY YEARS WEDDED

Edwin T. Wright, member of the Governor's Council, and Mrs. Wright will today informally observe the golden anniversary of their wedding at their home in Webster street, Rockland. Although the health of Mrs. Wright prevents a public reception, it is believed one will be given the popular councillor and his wife later in the year, after the couple return from a contemplated trip to California.

Councillor and Mrs. Wright will leave next week for a visit to their son in Santa Barbara.

MORALS GROW WORSE, SAYS JUDGE GRANT

Avers Growth of Divorce Threatens to Disintegrate American Home

"Only one country in the world has a worse divorce record than the United States," former Judge Robert Grant of the Probate Court told 200 members of the Boston University Graduates Club yesterday at their midwinter luncheon in the Hotel Bellevue.

"The American people, partly from conscious hypocrisy, are like ostriches. They delude themselves with talk of the beautiful, wholesome American home into a smug belief that domestic life is becoming better and better every day.

"Instead, we are getting worse and worse, in the sense that the American home shows signs of completely disintegrating.

DIVORCES "APPALLING"

"The growth of divorce is appalling. In [illegible] there were 1,126,418 marriages and 48,544 divorces in the United States. We speak of the sweet, moral American home and boast of our [illegible] morals, yet Canada [illegible] France and England have no such epidemic [illegible].

"We are facing a situation where divorce is [illegible] generally granted [illegible]. In all States they are granted now on that ground [illegible].

"[illegible] New Yorkers go from [illegible] where divorce may be obtained only upon the Biblical ground of [illegible] other States where they [illegible] New York. Then they return to [illegible] apply [illegible].

"TELLING" HER NAME

"What is the first letter of your [illegible]?" Dr. Cutter asked. "It's M, [illegible]?"

I said, "Yes." I was going to "follow the leader."

[illegible] his questioning, I answered "Yes."

"I knew it," he said brightly.

I had already given him, over the telephone, an assumed married name.

"What is the first letter of your [illegible] name?" he asked.

[illegible] another question [illegible] and, finally, [illegible] I forestalled further queries by telling him that it was Donlon.

"Yes, that's right," he agreed.

Certain individuals from the spirit world, the doctor said, had messages for me. I am not concerned with his spiritualistic references. It is not the purpose of this article to treat of spirits. But one interesting phase seemed significant.

REVEALING HUSBAND

A young man, a dead relative, the doctor told me, had a message. After another cross-examination we agreed it was a brother who died when I was a baby.

"This is the first time this spirit has materialized since his death," Dr. Cutter announced.

This was the fourth time I had been told of this brother's spiritual presence.

Then Dr. Cutter reverted to my personal affairs.

"What is the first initial of your husband's name?" he asked.

"G. E.?" "Yes."

"G. E. O.?" "Yes."

"George?" "Yes."

"That's right; I knew it," he answered.

"Now," he continued, "I don't like to make a prophecy. But I want to tell you things will soon be better for you.

"You were disappointed in marriage. That is why you have come to me.

THE OLD FIBBER

"Your husband is a good man. But [illegible] doing very well. It deceived you.

"Before you were married, he told you that he was successful. He deceived you as to his income.

[illegible] a little while, you [illegible] the truth. What business [illegible] he was [illegible]?"

[illegible] but I answered [illegible].

"I know," [illegible] replied. "I seem to see [illegible] around him. Wait, tell [illegible] next few weeks [illegible] a piece of property and make a large commission.

"Are you out of a job?" the doctor asked [illegible].

"Yes," I answered.

"[illegible] find work sooner than you think. I should say that in February or March you'd get what you want. What was the nature of your work?"

"[illegible] mustn't be discouraged," he [illegible]. "You['ll] get just the work [illegible] looking for.

"You [illegible] about losing that [illegible] felt it was injustice [illegible] think now [illegible] was [illegible]?"

WESTWARD HO AGAIN

"Yes," I answered.

Then he [illegible] me there was a western trip before me and it meant prosperity for my husband.

This [illegible] of the [illegible] others [illegible].

"What State [illegible]?" I asked.

"It won't be [illegible] California," he replied.

I must have [illegible].

for he immediately asked, "Did you expect to go there?"

"Not exactly," I said, "only we have relatives there."

[illegible] asked [illegible] "I"

He mentioned Irene, Irma, Ida, Isabel, Lena and several other names. Finally, I told him it was [illegible] which it is.

"Oh, yes," he answered, "that's right."

Dr. Cutter [illegible] declared [illegible] to California. [illegible]

"[illegible] your cousins will help your husband greatly. You will find great prosperity. There is real opportunity in California.

"I would like to pack your bags for you and send you out there tonight."

COMING OUT OF IT

Then he [illegible] out of his trance. He jerked his head violently, and opened his eyes.

"Oh, here I am," he remarked.

I rose and walked over to the cage and held out my hand to the cockatoo. He made a dive for my finger.

I hope the reading has been of benefit to you," Dr. Cutter said politely, and [illegible].

EXHAUSTED WOMEN WIN NEW STRENGTH AND NERVE POWER

Quickly Renew Body Vitality by the Wincarnis Home Treatment

Rich, red blood is the driving force of life. If the blood is weak, watery, impure we know nothing of the joys of success and accomplishment that come with abundant strength and nerve power. Red blood feeds the body tissues, nourishes the nerves, makes our systems tingle with the pulsing of life.

Those women and men as well, who are quickly exhausted, nervous, sleep fitfully and awake unrefreshed, who have not the vital nerve force to succeed and who must have new energy, should think first of their blood.

Nourish the blood. Enrich it. Get from your druggist today a generous size bottle of Wincarnis, the blood builder. Start the Wincarnis home treatment at once. It costs less than ten cents a day. No need to be pale, weak, haggard. Wincarnis will quickly give you new strength, vitality, nerve force.

ISADORA NOW SORRY FOR DIG SHE GAVE U. S.

Love's Dream Flown, Dancer Would Like to Return to Native Land

Isadora Duncan, who sailed for Europe on February 3 last on board the George Washington of the United States line, with her poet boy husband Serge Essenine, Russian peasant, hurling defiance at everything American, and saying her departure was "forever and a day," is in changed and chastened mood today at Moscow.

She would like nothing better than to return to America. She has broken completely with Essenine, from whom she has obtained an official separation under the Soviet law.

LEARNED LESSON.

These and many other interesting facts regarding the famous American born interpretative and classical dancer are made known by Isador J Gennett, Russian delegate from America of the Joint Narovler and Vicinity Relief Organization, who has just reached New York from Moscow.

The relief commissioner, who has completed a tour through many Russian provinces, said he had asked the dancer, who denounced the United States and the newspapers when she sailed away whether she intended to attempt to return to New York. Her reply was:

"I am afraid I cannot return to America, for I suspect I have burned my bridges behind me, unless what I said when I left New York was not taken too seriously. I was feeling hurt and indignant then and smarting under what I thought was the injustice of some of the newspapers. I admit I was indiscreet and talked wildly to the reporters.

"Some of the people back home, although I have the [illegible] appreciative admirers there [illegible] me as an extreme, wild-eyed [illegible]. One may be pink or at [illegible] pink, in America, but the [illegible] officials appear to have the idea that I am real red.

"Never again will I criticize any government. A great artist should be interested in art alone. I shall never again take any interest in politics. It is not my province. But I never really censured America. When in New York I merely told audiences I thought Russia a country where all had equal opportunities."

She was equally in doubt, when interviewed in Moscow, about her chances of returning to Paris. She said to Gennett:

"It has been suggested that I go back to Paris and open a dancing school for children such as I have here, and also give performances there. I cannot go there very well, because that husband of mine, of whom I have rid myself now, that wild young Essenine, broke up too much furniture and caused too many scenes after our arrival in France. Of course, that reflected on me.

"After arriving from New York in Paris I was busy all the time paying bills for things Essenine had broken, to say nothing of offering apologies. Continually I had to ask my friends to get Essenine out of French jails. Just before I left Paris I found he was again locked up somewhere. It was a real relief to come back to Russia and turn him over again to his parents. They will have to take care of him henceforth.

DANCE IN MOSCOW.

"Essenine is just like a child and needs constant attention. I have obtained an official separation from him, although I was never officially married to him. Always I have preferred to live alone, but it seemed that to gain admission to [illegible] country I had to marry.

Men Have it Pretty Soft in Town Near Shore of Winnepesaukee

By KATHERINE BROOKS, (Sunday Advertiser' Staff Correspondent.

Alton, N. H., Jan. 26.—Did you ever [illegible] deputy sheriff in a gingham apron setting the supper table?

Somebody called it "the Feminists' Paradise."

Not at all. It's the men's paradise. Nothing to do but eat, sleep and, well, perhaps chop a little wood, drive the sleigh [illegible] out of the car—while the women keep store, preside over the town hall, arrest the bad men, [illegible] school and boss the home.

RUN BY WOMEN.

Following is only a partial record of Alton's prowess as a feminists' stronghold:

Mrs. Harriet F. Varney is town treasurer.

Mrs. Edith Davis is deputy sheriff.

Mrs. Ethel W. Merrell is town clerk and [illegible] proprietress of the only soda and drug store.

Mrs. Mabel H. Brown is the town undertaker.

Mrs. Katherine G. Waldron is principal of the [illegible].

Mrs. Lena M. Fitts owns and runs the only hotel.

Mrs. Octavia H. Gilman, Mrs. Annie Wheeler and Mrs. Anna Wright are trustees of the public library.

Until recently Rev. Helen Y. Wallace, the youngest pastor in New England, was parson of the little white church on the main street. She has now gone to Indiana, where she is dean of a girl's college.

TOWN PROSPERS.

Under the benevolent petticoat regime, the little town apparently prospers. The houses are substantial, equipped with modern conveniences, newly painted, most of them white; the streets are wide and sunny, the town hall soundly built of brick, and on all sides one can look out upon broad fields, covered now with snow, out of which evergreen trees rise in a stately green.

In serving as deputy sheriff, Mrs. Edith Davis doesn't take a bit of [illegible] away from her husband, Oscar [illegible]. It's a [illegible].

"Why [illegible]?" asked the visitor. Mrs. Davis, who sat down [illegible] long [illegible] with [illegible] word.

DOESN'T CARRY GUN.

[illegible] "No, I don't need to [illegible] I have to [illegible] a good deal [illegible] trouble, is that [illegible]."

Mrs. Davis [illegible] New Hampshire [illegible]. She [illegible].

"It seems [illegible] women [illegible] ed up with men [illegible] are cooped up. But in States where women are [illegible] the two sexes are properly [illegible]. My [illegible] is that I don't think women are as [illegible]. They [illegible] quick [illegible] and then stick by their [illegible]."

As [illegible] Mrs. Davis [illegible] still [illegible].

"[illegible]," she said in answer to a query. "Oh, there is one [illegible] house somewhere, but I [illegible] with it. You don't need to show a [illegible]."

[illegible] band, Harry Evans, was the town undertaker. He died a few years ago, and then there was no undertaker. Occasion arose when one was needed. They begged Mrs. Evans, as she was then, to offer [illegible]. She [illegible] knew all the [illegible]. She [illegible], and I [illegible] Mrs. Evans knew she was the town undertaker.

[illegible] she married Willo Brown, who [illegible]. They have [illegible] bought new equipment and the business is thoroughly established.

[illegible] Mrs. Brown was asked. She shook her head.

"How can I?" she replied. "I know everybody. Whenever any one dies it is a friend. My task is a sad one."

Both Mrs. Varney and Mrs. Merrill, the town clerk, do much of their work at home. If you want to [illegible] attention and don't find Mrs. Merrill at the town hall, you [illegible] at her home [illegible]

TWO AMATEUR CLUBS FORCED TO PAY $50 FINES

In Spite of Internal Troubles, Hockey Is Proving More Popular Than Ever in Various Sections of the Dominion.

By H. E. McCORMICK

Montreal, Jan. [illegible] Amateur hockey [illegible] its height in the East [illegible] While in Montreal [illegible] amateur situation has been [illegible] various [illegible] winding their way successfully.

The Q[illegible] Hockey Association has had some very trying cases [illegible]. Much criticism has voiced upon some of the sentences.

To [illegible] with a [illegible] start the [illegible] Hockey League played four men in defiance of the president of the Q A H A. This was in the first local game of the circuit. The league just missed being outlawed at a general meeting. It was the 13th vote by a junior organization that kept them in for the Allan Cup competition. A fine of $50 was agreed to be the penalty for each club—Nationals and Three Rivers—for using the players [illegible] Rheaume, Chaut[illegible] and [illegible].

The [illegible] quite a discussion on an amateur team paying a fine. In other words, a team can play an outlaw player, pay a fine, then be all right in the eyes of the amateur officials. At [illegible] this is a precedent set.

PRO REINSTATED.

Then to cap the works, Dave Campbell who turned professional a couple of years ago with Canadiens was given his amateur card [illegible] signed a professional contract, received money for playing [illegible] played in scheduled games [illegible] was whitewashed. Nobody seems to know why, but he got it all the same. He made an affidavit that he returned the money and has been a "good boy" ever since. The Q. A. H. A. approved the card. President Sexsmith of the C. A. H. A. passed on it and then President W. E. Findley of the A. A. U. of C. granted him permission to mingle with the simon pures.

It states in the constitution of all three organizations that an athlete accepting money can "Never be reinstated" once a professional, always a professional [illegible] the action.

Regardless of the amateur mixup, the Eastern Canada and City leagues are prospering. The recently organized E. C. H. L. is going big and looks to be the right step to bring senior hockey to a high standard.

Victorias of Montreal forged ahead early in the season and have a fair chance for top honors. They have a well balanced regular lineup but lack reliable substitutes. It is expected that in four weeks' time that "Sig" Slater will be back for left wing, position he holds on the Olympic team. "Ski" Scott in goal hails from Vancouver and plays a great game. In front of him is George Mallinson, picked for every all-star team in the past decade. He works with "Torry" Shibley, a lanky ex Loyola College student.

The forward line has a good sprinkling of McGill College, two former stalwarts holding positions. Dr. Cyril Flanagan at right wing is one of the hardest workers of the league. His speedy shots are the dread of many goalers. "Boo" Anderson at centre is classified as the best back checker in eastern Canada, and can also carry the puck. Donnie Grant, who last year played his initial season in senior company with the M. A. A. A., has been lining up on the regular squad. Grant possesses wonderful ability of picking holes and, although lacking in experience he has dented the twine with regularity. Darcy Leamy, a left winger, has shown promise but his lack of weight is a big handicap.

Nationals have been greatly strengthened by the services of Dave Campbell. He and Leo Heffernan work well on the defence. Heffernan came into prominence while playing for the Winged Wheelers and the Big Four of Bankers' League last season, and has continued to play a splendid game this year, developing into one of the best defence players of Montreal. Gervais in goals is one of the best in the circuit.

The forward line is one of the fastest seen around this part of the country for some time, with substitutes to relieve the regulars without ill effect. Hornsby Slipped It Over Fence

One hot day in St Louis last Summer, the Giants and the Cards were locked in an extra inning duel. It was a great battle.

Reserves were being rushed into the front line trenches every few moments. John Scott was sent in to pitch about the ninth inning.

Twice he and the catcher batted out of turn, due to insertions of pinch hitters for previous battery mates. In the fourteenth inning or thereabouts, Scott tossed one to Hornsby and the Royal Rajah slammed it out of the lot.

"Ah now you tol' me to keep it low, Mac," said Scott in answer to a vigorous attack by McGraw. "Ah meant to keep it low, Mac," said Scott in answer that ball slipped offen ma fingahs. Yessuh! It slipped!"

TWO BIG SHOWS FOR HUB DEVOTEES OF BOXING THIS WEEK

JOHNNY WILSON WILL BE REED'S OPPONENT TUESDAY

By S. J. MAHONEY

Another drive will be seen on Huntington avenue Tuesday night There will be a mad scramble on the part of many to get into Mechanics Hall, where Johnny Wilson and Pal Reed will meet in a 10-round battle

This show will be given under the direction of the Armory A. A., and as it will be Elks' Night, the rank and file of fans interested in Wilson or Reed will have a slim chance of getting through the portals if they don't call at the office of the club early

For several days Ivy Lewis has been doing a land-office business in the matter of dispensing tickets, and the indications are not many will be left this evening.

The up-State friends of Reed are convinced Pal will win this time and at least 2,000 admirers of the Natick man will be here from Framingham Milford, Southboro, Marlboro and Pal's home town Pal is a great favorite in that section

Another thrilling combat is in prospect. The keen rivalry, the willingness of each to mix things and their unquestioned gameness are things that assure the fans of a contest that will keep them on edge from the start to the finish

Each is confident he'll win. Reed feels that it means a chance for him with Harry Greb in the event of being [illegible] the winner of the battle. That means money and glory

Wilson believes that a victory will keep Reed back as a contender, and he will still have the right of way to challenge Greb to meet him in a third battle

One of the largest crowds of the season will be out, for the terrific speed at which this team recently travelled at the Arena still is fresh in the minds of all those who were privileged to see that great contest at the meeting place on St. Botolph street

With a fine list of preliminaries to furnish action before the feature all things point to a session of unusual merit.

SHADE CLASHES WITH MOORE.

It is the consensus of opinion [illegible] that Dave [illegible] show better next Friday night at the Faneuil A. C. as a middleweight [illegible] did in some of his recent bouts as a welterweight

Good judges believe that the light [illegible] member of the Shade family has been gradually adding muscle to his frame because of his continued [illegible]s, and training to the welterweight limit has not given him a chance to show at his best

These judges declare that it has been more or less of a hardship for him to reduce, but they say that at or about 152 pounds he will be a whirlwind in the middleweight class

Training will not worry him much, for he always will be under weight, and he really will have the edge on most opponents at the outset

Shade is greatly interested in his debut as a middleweight. He feels that he will have an international standing if he succeeds in whipping Ted Moore, the sturdy English boxer who fought Tommy Loughran 10 rounds here a short time ago.

Interest fairly soars in this contest [illegible] is generally regarded as one of the big events of the week.

ACTION AT ST. JOE'S.

Amateurs will have an inning this evening at Commercial Hall The competitors will all be novices, so that is something for the members of the St. Joseph's T. A Society to consider

This class of "pures" certainly do the best work. They furnish what the regular followers of the sport seek. Five classes will be seen at the old "Home of Action" this evening.

WRESTLING GOING BIG.

Just now wrestling seems to be on the crest of the sporting wave in this city. Large crowds have been present at nearly all the shows, and two more big gatherings are in prospect this week.

George Tuohey will stage a series of bouts at Mechanics Hall Wednesday night, and Paul Bowser will have his regular weekly show at the Grand Opera House Thursday night

Toots Mondt, one of the best big fellows in the country, will meet Ivan Zanovich at Tuohey's show, while Stanley Stasiak and Joe Alvarez will meet at the Grand

Friends of Nat Carter, formerly president of the Winnisimmet A. C. of Chelsea, will regret to learn that he is seriously ill. Nat was stricken with pneumonia recently Mr Carter was one of the group who kept boxing going in this State when it looked very dark for the sport.

Betless Racing Proves Flivver

Turfmen in California are learning an old lesson, that racing without betting cannot live. A "betless meeting" at Culver City in that State attracted such small crowds that the track was closed after thirteen days of financial losses. Another attempt to revive racing there will be made on January 26 under the same unfavorable conditions but the owners of the property are preparing to cut it into building lots.

WHITE SOX WILL SEND TWO SQUADS

Chicago, Jan 26—The White Sox are going into camp in two squads New men who didn't have a chance to come up and show their stuff last Fall also a few of the fellows who did get [illegible] of work last [illegible], but on whom the new manager is anxious to get a line, will depart from here February 29 and work for [illegible] at Winter Haven on March 2

The remainder of the squad will be [illegible] when the money suits [illegible], which means they will have [illegible] time to toughen up their muscles for the initial exhibition combat.

The opening exhibition that is [illegible] for March 17 against the [illegible] Sarasota training [illegible]

[illegible] two days following the St. Louis [illegible] will be [illegible] and the [illegible] St. Petersburg

Later the same teams as well as the [illegible] Nationals and [illegible] will visit Winter Haven and the White Sox will make a one day leap to the Phillies camp at Leesburg On March 31 the Northward tour with the Giants will start

Although several open dates are available, no additional games will be booked, according to Secretary Grabiner

The open days will be made use of by sending the athletes through their paces on the training field

YALE HAS 300 IN SQUAD FOR RING

New Haven, Jan 26—Captain Ben Funk of the Yale boxing squad [illegible] of the Illinois Congressman [illegible] reported more than 300 candidates were out for the team He [illegible] annual call for candidates [illegible] week and the response indicates that the sport is popular on the Yale indoor schedule. The Yale officials have arranged a varsity schedule of four meets and organized a freshman team which will clash with three opponents

The Navy boxers will appear here The New Haven arena, which seats 4,500 persons, has been obtained for the bouts. In addition the team will take trips to Charlottesville, Va to meet the University of Virginia [illegible] men and to Kingston, Canada for another series with Queen's College

Yale's team is practically the combination which won the intercollegiate title in last Winter's competition. Only Captain Art Cary has been graduated.

SAME OLD BUNCH WITH THE PHILLIES

Philadelphia, Jan. 26—It looks as if Manager Art Fletcher will have to worry along with about the same bunch of ball tossers that [illegible] him in seventh place last year

Arrangements call for 40 players to report to the Florida training base There will be 18 pitchers in the squad of hurlers. Carlson is the most experienced tosser of the new comers. He tried to pitch 'em past National League hitters a few years ago when a member of the Pirates. As a member of the Wichita Falls team last season he hung up a great record

Jimmy Ring looms as the star of the staff. Ten of the hurlers are holdovers. In addition to Ring they are Weinert, Winters, Glazner, Behan, Bishop, Head, Hubbell Mitchell and Couch. The newcomers are Carlson, Betts, Brown, Manning, Pinto, Leipe and Krisinger.

FIGHTS PAL REED

Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, who has agreed to give Natick boy return battle in Mechanics Hall, "Elks' Night." Each is confident of winning

SAYS "BUGS" Baer: CROQUET AN ANCIENT GAME

(Copyright, 1924, by Star Company)

CROQUET is one of America's oldest games. In fact, it is what made America old

It originated in the thirteenth century in France. Ever since then thirteen has been recognized as an unfortunate number.

It is an old-fashioned way of tormenting a lawn People now prefer golf because they get their results and divots quicker

But croquet is father of golf. Maybe it's its mother. But it was played for six centuries in Europe before first croquet expert smuggled himself into America.

He came over here around 1849 and he is the reason why our present immigration laws are so strict

It was all the rage in America, but it was killed by bicycle riding.

Any sport that can be killed by bicycle riding must have been good

Its special feature is that it affords mature opportunity for extreme deliberation and a chance to concentrate on the playing thereof. When it becomes one's turn to play, a chance is afforded to take a deliberate survey of the exciting situation, and thus determine in an unhurried way the best method of manipulating the wooden spheroids.

The lure and fascination of croquet is so great that the Civil War was terminated abruptly in five years in order to give General Grant and General Lee a chance to get home and defend their croquet laurels

(Tomorrow's article will be on roque, a Scotch game without reasons.)

'BABE' BACK ON BROADWAY PROMISES NEW RECORD

New York, Jan. 26 (A. P.)—Declaring himself fit for a record breaking campaign and confident that the Yankees will make [illegible] straight American League pennants, Babe Ruth invaded Steve L[illegible] headquarters today after a trip from the fastnesses of his rural retreat at Sudbury, Mass. The home run slugger has forsaken the [illegible] life for a few days to undertake an oratorical role tomorrow [illegible] the baseball writers' dinner.

"I'm going after a new home run record next season hammer and tongs," declared the Babe. "If I don't bust that mark of 59 [illegible] 1921, I don't think I ever will. You know I'll be thirty my next birthday and they say that's the peak in the life of a major leaguer

"I think I'd knock 75 homers if we played at the Po[illegible] which is made to order for me, but I may have my troubles [illegible] them out of the Yankee stadium field."

Ruth said he was close to his best playing weight now and [illegible] to get into preliminary harness at Hot Springs, Ark., where he [illegible] to "boil out" next month.

"The simple life has agreed with me," said Ruth. "I've kept trim by chopping wood this Winter and my chicken-raising business has boomed."

Tad Jones Is Track Booster

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 26.—Head Coach Tad Jones of the Yale Football Association urged all candidates for next year's eleven to join the track squad, because the track events help the gridiron stars to start quickly and to dodge cleverly, while the field events are ideal training for the muscles of the linemen. Trainer George Connors of the football team, coach of the track candidates, also recommended full enrolment of football stars with the track squad. Yale has arranged freshman and varsity relay races with Harvard at the Boston Athletic Association meet, February 2, and has agreed to meet the Cornell relay team at Ithaca, March 31.

Umps Should Be Strong for Him

San Francisco, Jan 26.—Harry A. Williams the new Coast League president, wants to increase the number of umpires from eight to ten next season and to raise their pay

At present an umpire must worry along for $400 to $450 in a league where many ballplayers are paid $500 a month some of them more The umpire gets only his bare travelling expenses, too

He pays his own hotel and eating expenses on the road. That's hardly fair

At the very least the salary of efficient abiters like Byron and Perle Casey should be on a parity with that of the general run of players, and it is not that now

Williams' idea in proposing ten umpires instead of eight is to have a couple of spares

U. S. BOWS TO FINLAND AND NORWAY IN OLYMPIC SKATING

JEWTRAW WINS BUT OTHER U. S. STARS FAIL TO PLACE

Third Place Best U. S. Can Do in Opening of Winter Schedule; Thunberg of Finland Winning 5,000-Metre Event

Chamoniox, France, Jan. 26.—America and Finland shared the spoils in the opening of the Olympic Winter sports championships today, Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, N. Y., topping his field in the 500-metre event by a scant tenth of a second, and Thunberg of Finland skipping over the 5,000-metre distance in the winning time of 8 minutes and 38 seconds.

America, however, did not fare so well in the final totaling of points for the day, the United States being rated in third position. Finland led the procession with 20½ points and Norway was second with 17½.

The Yankees scored only 11 points, in spite of Jewtraw's victory. Sweden the only remaining nation to score today, had but one point to its credit.

Bialis made the best showing of the Yankees, placing sixth with 8 minutes and 53 seconds, closely followed by Donovan in eighth position. Jewtraw finished in thirteenth place, his time being 9 minutes 27 seconds. Oddly enough, the only American heat winner, Steinmetz, finished far in the ruck.

Thunberg, winner of the race, was closely followed in the time reckoning by Sjutnabb of Finland and Larsen of Norway, who finished second and third respectively.

Jewtraw, American winner of the 500-metre event, was forced into second place in his heat at the 5,000-metre distance. The Lake Placid steedster finished second to Harold Strom of Norway after a desperate duel. The winner's time was 8 minutes 54 seconds.

Point Leaders in Olympic Meet

Chamonix, France, Jan. 26.—Finland, Norway and the United States are leading in Olympic points after the first two events of the world games. Following the 500-meter and the 5,000-meter skating events, here's how the leading countries stand:

Finland	20½	points
Norway	17½	points
United States...	11	points

HARVARD CUBS BEAT ANDOVER

Captain Knight and Richards tallied for the losers. "Izzy" Zarakov of the Crimson team was the hero of the Harvard win, and throughout the game he had too much speed and knowledge for the Prep school lads.

B. C. HOCKEY STAR

EAGLES HAVE WIZARD SKATER. In Eddie Mullowney, Boston College has the greatest college hockey player in the East. He is regarded as another Hobey Baker, and his brilliant work has been responsible for the hockey triumphs of the Eagles this season.

EDDIE MULLOWNEY IS HUB HOCKEY SENSATION

By EDDIE DONDERO.

One of the sensations of the present hockey season hereabouts is Eddie Mullowney, Boston College's wonderful defense star. He is mentioned in many places as being the best disc chaser that has been developed in a New England college since the late Hobey Baker left St. Paul's in Concord, N. H., to star for the Princeton Tigers.

Mullowney was taught the rudiments of the ice game at Brookline High but he is having his first big season now.

Though he was an excellent performer a year ago, yet he was forced to spend most of his time on the sidelines so good was the veteran material at the Heights.

This gave the Brookline boy an opportunity to pick up valuable points, so he took advantage of every opportunity.

Early this season when Coach Foote called out the Maroon and Gold hockey candidates, Mullowney was still considered a substitute. His first scrimmage made Foote change his mind and also his line-up. Blonde Groden was moved to a wing berth to make room for Mullowney at left defence.

JUST WHAT WAS NEEDED.

This change was just what B. C. needed. Mullowney's work has featured every game so far this season. He was especially effective against the flashy Canadian colleges. His playing against Toronto caused many experts to comment on his brilliant work.

Few opponents get by his defence because of his excellent body checking as well as checking the rubber. He is a fast skater and handles the disc well and should be one of the leading members of next year's squad.

Eddie will look a lot better next season when Tubber Cronin and Eddie Harrington don Boston College uniforms. These lads are now wearing the colors of the B. A. A., but will join the B. C. sextet next Fall. Sonney Foley, Blonde Groden, Mahoney, Culhane and Mullowney will all return.

The Brookline boy was a versatile performer during his high school career. He was a three letter man, playing baseball, track and hockey. Coach "Hennie" Carroll, Brookline High's ice coach, claims he is the best performer that has come up from a Greater Boston high school in many, many years.

In Mullowney's spare time he helps Coach Carroll with his Brookline High charges. Almost every afternoon Mullowney coaches the Brookline High defence candidates the fine points of the ice games.

In Brookline's opening game of the season the wealthy towners were represented by a powerful defensive combination with whom Mullowney had spent considerable time.

GRODEN IS A COMER.

Another comer that is a regular on the Boston College hockey sextet is Blonde Groden, who covers a wing assignment. Groden's only weakness is at shooting the rubber, but Coach Foote will soon develop the new hockey luminary so that his shoots will be effective.

Coach Foote's statement believes Groden will develop as did Mullowney.

His dazzling passing is worth while watching. The manner in which he dribbles the disc and then [illegible] brings the opposing defence out and then his brilliant pass to Foley usually means disaster for the opposition.

The Groden-to-Foley combination in the forward line makes the Eagles one of the most dangerous college sixes that has played on the Arena surface this season.

Butler Will Sign 'Em

NEW STARS TO SHINE IN GAME

Many Players Are Sure to Be Heard From in Major Leagues

New York, Jan. 26.—Considerable space in the sporting columns at this time of the year is always given to the new recruits. The new class of 1924 is about to assemble, and we hear much discussion of the brilliant newcomers, acquired by the reckless use of big league fountain pens. Money is no object, and talk runs in the tens of thousands. Even Connie Mack has run amuck. Where he once was baseball's best seller he now flourishes a mean fountain pen, and if you believe everything you read in the Philadelphia baseball columns he has spent $125,000 for three young ball players.

Every one is talking of the sensational newcomers. The Yanks buy Combs, the Kentucky speed boy; the Giants expect a lot from their new pitching acquisitions—Dean, Maun and Bradshaw; the 1924 hopes of the Dodgers rest with Jones and Yarrison, and Cincinnati is tickled silly over the acquisition of Tom Sheehan and Jakey May. And so it goes!

However, as interesting as the records of the new 1924 recruits is the contemplation of the prospects of the sophomore class of 1924. The season of 1923 brought up one of the biggest classes of promising youngsters ever graduated into the majors. What are the prospects of these boys in their second year in big league company?

It takes some ball players three to four years to arrive. A few youngsters are stars from the moment they poke their noses into a big league dugout. This has been true of a few collegians, Eddie Plank, Harry Lord and Franky Frisch being shining examples. Others just feel around in their first season so as to get their bearings and don't begin to show much until their second season.

JACKSON ONLY A KID IN YEARS

The class of 1923 was so promising that quite a few youngsters of last Spring's training camps should ripen into real stars this year. We have such a player here in New York in Travis Jackson, the young infielder of the Giants. This kid has just reached voting age, but will be called upon to fill a position on a championship club formerly held by such brilliant shortstops as Bridwell, Fletcher and Bancroft.

There is a splendid chance of Jackson, the young Arkansan, developing into even a greater player than any of these former infield luminaries. Jackson shows better form at bat than did either Fletcher or Bancroft when they were young players. Both Art and "Banny" were made hitters, as neither showed much batting skill when he first came into the National League.

Jackson hits a ball with terrific force, and some of the fans were amazed last season at the length of the flies he sent to the outfield. When he fills out a little more and gets a better knack of straightening out a pitch he should take his position among the battling stars of his league.

Huggins, mite manager of the Yanks, predicts that George Pipgrass, his young righthander, may take his place among the twirling stars of the game this year. The Yankee staff was so strong that Pipgrass got little work last season, but when he did get an opportunity he showed a rare amount of stuff. He is another promising sophomore of 1924.

HUGGINS PRAISES PIPGRASS.

"I intend to use Pipgrass a lot this year," said Huggins. "He learned a lot last season, even though I was not in a position to use him in many games. With Mays gone I will use him as a relief pitcher and give him a chance to start whenever a good chance presents."

The Boston Braves have several promising second year men, especially in their pitching department. Both Joe Genewich and Johnny Cooney should take their place among National League pitching stars this year. Genewich, a semi-pro in 1922, won 13 games and lost 14 last season with a seventh place club. With an improved team behind him he should do much better in 1924.

Johnny Cooney, the former New Haven lefthander, was held back a lot by illness last season, but when he did get in shape late in the season he showed a rare amount of stuff. He also displayed surprising ability at bat, and clouted out an average of .379.

Gus Felix, a young Brave outfielder of last season, also should show the benefit of last year's experience. The same is true of Bagwell, the big, sluggish outfielder with the Boston club early in the 1923 race. Bagwell, a .400 hitter in 1922 in the Southwestern League, proved a crude, awkward fielder, but he is a natural hitter, and when he leans on the ball it sails.

Bike Races Booked

13 Was Enough for Ballplayer

In 13 cities, in 13 States, in 13 leagues, in 13 years. It is a record that just shows how a ball player may travel.

Back in 1908 or 1909 a youngster with a wide curve was signed by Manager Moses B. Strouse of a Baltimore independent team. His name was Freddy Bruck. Playing third for the same nine was Fritz Maisel of the Orioles.

The next Spring Jack Dunn grabbed Maisel and Strouse secured Bruck a job at Wilson, N. C. That position started Bruck on a pilgrimage.

Thirteen years Freddy stayed in organized ball. Playing in 13 cities in 13 States in 13 leagues was his unique record. Here are the towns which saw his sweeping curve: Wilson, N. C.; Columbus, O.; Jersey City, N. J.; Binghamton, N. Y.; Terre Haute, Ind.; Omaha, Neb.; Lynchburg, Va.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Vancouver, B. C.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Daytona, Fla., and Roswell, N. M.

TO TRAVEL 6,000 MILES TO PLAY

The Drake University football team of Des Moines, Iowa, will travel 6,000 miles and will touch fourteen States next season, it has just been revealed by the list of games announced by Athletic Director K. L. Wilson. The Drake eleven will open its campaign on Oct. 4, when it travels to Salt Lake City to meet the University of Utah team. It will complete its season on Thanksgiving Day when it journeys all the way to Gainesville, Fla., for a contest with the University of Florida.

With five Missouri Valley and two intersectional games scheduled, the Drake team faces the hardest list of games it has ever arranged. The Des Moines players expect strong opposition from the University of Utah, which is a member of the Rocky Mountain Conference and which usually produces one of the strongest teams in the West. It has been announced that, while making the trip to Salt Lake City, the Drake players will stop off at Denver, Colorado Springs and other Rocky Mountain resorts.

In making the long trip to Gainesville, the Drake players will probably leave Des Moines on the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving Day, stopping off at St. Louis on Monday for a practice session. From the Mound City they will journey to Chattanooga, where they will again stop to hold a workout. They will then go to Jacksonville, Fla., for practice on Wednesday, and will travel the remaining eighty-five miles down the coast to Gainesville on Thanksgiving Day. On the return trip they will probably stop off at Cincinnati and Chicago.

While covering the distance of 6,000 miles next season the Drake team will touch the following fourteen States: Iowa, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Utah.

The schedule now consists of eight games, but one date, November 1, is still open. Four of the contests will be played at home, while those to be played away from home are with Utah, Florida, Kansas Aggies and Ames. Prospects for another strong team at Drake are bright. Coach Salem will lose only two veterans from his 1923 eleven, Captain Bill Boelter and Tackle Al Krueger. For the last two seasons the Des Moines team has finished third in the Missouri Valley football race.

HERE'S ANOTHER FOR WELL KNOWN BOOK

At this time of the year when all sorts of baseball averages and records are being presented to the public it will not be amiss to offer the "freak" pinch record made by Ralph Shinners, outfielder and pinch runner extraordinary of the New York Giants, who was taken seriously ill, it will be recalled, immediately before the World's Series.

Shinners served as pinch runner and pinch hitter in the same inning of one game on August 27. He scored as a pinch runer for Hank Gowdy, and then, as the entire line-up batted around Ralph came up as a pinch hitter for a pinch runner. He drew a base on balls and was left on base.

Shinners took part in 33 games, and yet played his regular outfield post in only six of them, appearing at other times as pinch runner and pinch hitter. He accepted eight chances without an error. He was a pinch runner 17 times and a pinch hitter on nine occasions.

JOHNNY BROWN OF ENGLAND IS WINNER

New York, Jan. 26. — Johnny Brown, bantamweight champion of Europe, just cabled his manager, Charley Harvey, that he has added to his knockout record by stopping Bill Hindley in fourteen rounds in London. Brown plans to sail for this country within a month to challenge Joe Lynch for the world's title.

OLYMPIC COACHES WERE STARS OF TRACK ONCE

By JOHN H. CLAUSEN.

Many of the men who have been mentioned for positions on the staff of Olympic coaches were famous athletes in times past. Some were all-round men and others specialized in certain sports, but all were enthusiastic in the work of placing track athletics on a high plane.

Best known of all the coaches is John F. Moakley, who, in the late eighties and early nineties, was a star at a half mile. He could beat two minutes on any old sort of a track and like nearly all the competitors of that period was his own trainer.

Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania was famous for his sprinting. When Lawson was doing evens he probably weighed 165 pounds and, being over six feet in height, he was a fine type of track man.

Strange to say, his father was less than five feet seven, but he was a tremendously powerful man.

STEVE FARRELL LED ALL.

Steven Farrell of Michigan, sprinter, quarter-miler and half miler, weighed fully as much as Robertson when competing. Steve was a physical wonder.

When Farrell conditioned himself for a short race he could run as fast as any man living, but when he cared to break loose at a quarter mile or a half mile, he was invincible.

You know that Wefers and Meredith were remarkable runners, but I have yet to see Farrell's equal as a runner for distance from 100 yards to a half-mile.

Tom Keane of Syracuse could clear nearly 23 feet in a broad jump and run a hundred in three yards faster than evens. He was even better at 150 yards and could break 50 seconds for a quarter.

Keane was the happiest athlete I have ever known. Win or lose, he was the life of the "Old Gang."

Walter Christie of California was just the opposite of Keane. He was inclined to be serious, especially just before a race. Christie was of the greyhound type, could beat 10 seconds, run the hurdles well and was fond of putting the shot.

Christie was so fast going to a take-off in a broad jump that he would slide along the earth after landing. He was not of the leaping kind but he would shoot off the take-off like a rocket.

GILL NEXT TO THORPE.

Harry Gill of Illinois was a star all-round man. Ten events in one afternoon seemed easy for Gill and then, if he was asked to make a second try at the high jump, he would probably clear 6 feet.

You have heard a lot about Jim Thorpe, the Indian, but Harry Gill is a close second.

Jack Ryder of Boston College was best at a half-mile. He would run three miles if he wanted to and could run a fast quarter when necessary. For consistent work, day in and day out, it would be hard to find a better half-mile runner than Ryder was in the old days.

Eddie Farrell of Harvard was a real live wire on the cinder path. Half-miles or dashes, broad jumps or high jumps, Farrell seemed to be everywhere. It was a common thing to see his name on about half the list of events. He could clear close to 45 feet in a hop, step and jump.

Keene Fitzpatrick of Princeton, as an athlete, was not comparable with some of the others whom I have mentioned, but his note book was more interesting than any pair of legs that ever ran around a track.

When he and the late M. J. Finn decided on the capabilities of this man or that man, then it was almost certain to be right.

John J. Magee of Bowdoin is of the Fitzpatrick type of coach. His actual athletic experience was not extensive, but he follows the sport very closely.

Many coaches know their own men fairly well, but Magee knows his own men and also the other fellows.

HILLMAN GOOD HURDLER.

Harry Hillman of Dartmouth was a remarkable hurdler. That means that he also was a fast runner. I believe his view-point on coaching is different from that of many of the other men, but his ability to get good results from rather ordinary material is much to his credit.

Frank M. Kanaly of Maine was best at from two to four miles. He could run a half close to 1:56. In 1901 he won the five mile championship of the country. That was over twenty years ago.

It may surprise you to know that Kanaly can run a good mile at the present time.

JOIE RAY DENIES HE IS SLOWING UP

CHICAGO FLIER HAS RUN 50 RACES UNDER 4:20

Poor Showing in First Race of Season Doesn't Worry Star Who Will Run in Hunter Mile at B. A. A. Meet.

Has Joie Ray, the greatest of all milers, passed over the brow of the hill?

Has the Kankakee Marvel, who has reigned supreme in the distances between the mile and three miles for nearly a decade, hit the skids at last?

Has the strain of running the mile under 4 minutes and 20 seconds fifty times, on top of turning in hundreds of other high class distance performances across the stretch of eleven years of steady competition, dulled the speed of Joie's great leg muscles?

The mediocre performance that Ray showed in his first start of the current indoor season has set the "track" fans to thinking. Never before during his decade of racing has Joie started his season on the local tracks with an inferior effort. In the Silk A. A. race—a 1,500 meter handicap—the little Tricolor star was just 19 yards slower than 4 minutes and 5 seconds, which was mighty poor running for a man of Ray's calibre.

The answer will not be long delayed. Ray's engagements on the local tracks during the next fortnight should furnish it. If he gets back to his 4:20 form in the mile races without delay, then it can be truly said that his mediocre running at the Silk A. A. games was just an "off day" race caused, possibly, by his being short of work.

On the other hand, if Joie repeats the brand of running that he started his local campaign with last week, the athletic sharps will believe, and not without reason, that the Kankakee flyer's speed has started to ebb.

The possibility of Ray's being forced to abandon the mile for the longer distances in the not distant future seems almost a probability. Hannes Kolehmainen, the phenomenal Finnish distance runner, had the same experience several years ago. Some five years after his amazing string of distance triumphs at the Stockholm Olympic games, Hannes found that the speed which had enabled him to run two miles under 9:20 consistently was beginning to leave him.

Instead of becoming discouraged or quitting Koly moved up to the longer races. Today, approaching thirty-two, the Flying Finn can run from fifteen miles to the Marathon distance with any man in the world.

This is not to say, either, that Ray will have to length out his distance to anything like the extent that Kolehmainen did to retain his effectiveness as a foot racer in the event of his losing his grip in the mile. Joie possesses enough natural speed to operate in the races from two to five miles indefinitely should he find that he is no longer capable of holding his own in the distance at which he has won the American championship eight times.

SHOULD RUN 5,000 METERS.

It is the almost unanimous opinion among critics on foot racing, too, that Ray should abandon the idea of running in the 1,500 meter race at the Olympic games at Paris next summer in favor of starting in the 5,000 meters and 3,000 meters team events. The reason for this change, as pointed out in The Evening Telegram last week, is that Paavo Nurmi will not start in the "5,000," in which Willie Ritola, who is "made to order" for Ray at any distance up to and including five miles, will be Finland's big gun in this race.

The sooner Ray reaches the decision to go up to the 5,000 meter event, and backs it up by training for that event, the better will be the chances for the United States to score an upset in one of Finland's favorite races and for Ray's own chances of entering the list of 1924 Olympic winners.

B. A. A. RACES MAY TELL.

As written above, the next few weeks should reveal the true state of Ray's running form, and this is particularly true of the Wanamaker mile and a half special, in which Joie is scheduled to start at the B. A. A. races February 2.

If the Kankakee athlete fails to dliver in the Hunter mile, there will be grave misgivings as to his ability to repeat his former conquests in the long events. There seems to be little likelihood of this cominb about, however. The belief prevails in athletic circles that, though the edge of his speed for the shorter races may be dulled a bit, Ray will not be found wanting beyond the mile distance.

The Wanamaker special, like the national mile, seems to be a lucky event for Ray. Joie has suffered but one defeat in nine starts in the Millrose mile and a half event and is unbeaten in sight attempts at the national mile title.

The only year that he has not won the latter event since 1914 was in 1916, when he shifted to the five mile championship and won it, so that his clubmate, Ivan Myers, could annex the mile title.

RAY'S GREAT RECORD.

Joie Ray's record on the cinders and boards is perhaps the greatest ever compiled by a distance runner. Since he ran his first race back in 1911, Joie has taken part in something like four hundred contests, at distances from 100 yards to ten miles.

As is well known he has run the mile under 4:20 fifty times, and has probably beaten 4:30 more than a hundred times. He has run the quarter mile under 52 seconds, the half mile in 1:56, and 1,000 yards in 2 minutes and 13 seconds. His fastest mile is 4:13 4-5 seconds—done in a handicap race that he did not win.

In addition to all this Ray holds several world's records at intermediate distances, and has run the fastest two miles ever credited to a human being—9 minutes, 8 2-5 seconds, done at the indoor games of the Wilco Athletic Association in Brooklyn, last Winter.

Ray, the little man of iron that he is, has put his muscular system to a terrific strain in campaigning Summer and Winter, on cinders and boards. It is obvious that he cannot go on indefinitely. One of these days the great little Kankakee boy will pass the brow of the hill.

Joie stoutly denies that there is the slightest reason for suspecting that his speed is beginning to wane. The Tricolor star, who, by the way, has threatened to retire several times, waxes indignant when it is suggested that lack of ability may force him to step down.

Four Spitball Pitchers Left

New York, Jan. 26.—There are at present only four licensed spitball pitchers in the National League and the Cardinals have two of them, Sothoron and Bill Doak. Clarance Mitchell of the Phillies, and Burleigh Grimes o fthe Dodgers complete the list.

1400 STARS IN MILLROSE MEET

New York, Jan. 26.—A record-breaking field of 1400 athletes from 27 States and Canada will compete in the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden next Tuesday and Wednesday, one of the biggest indoor meets of the season. One thousand athletes have entered in the open events to be held on Tuesday night, while 040 athletes have accepted invitations for the special invitation events.

World's champions, Olympic champions and National champions will compete in the invitation events.

The Rodman Wanamaker mile and a half, one of the features, will bring to the starting point three Chicago stars, Joie Ray, Ray Buker and Ray Watson. "Boots" Lever, former Penn track captain, will have plenty of opposition in the sprints from Loren Murchison, Bob McAllister and Alan Woodring, metropolitan district cracks.

Harold Osborn, who broke the world's indoor high jump at Chicago last night, will meet the cream of the jumping world in the high jump event, including Leroy Brown, former Dartmouth star and record-holder.

PITTENGER GOES TO SECOND BASE

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 26.—Clark Pittenger, late of the Boston Red Sox, is counted on for the keystone position. Duffy Lewis knows that the former Dartmouth football star can field the ball in any company and is confident he will be able to hit once he gets into the line-up regularly.

BASKETBALL HOLDS THE SPOTLIGHT IN MAINE

By "BUCK" FREEMAN.

Waterville, Jan. 26.—With enthusiasm at its height regarding Winter sports in Maine, basketball continues to hold the predominating place in prep school circles. The intense rivalry which has existed for a number of years is again coming into its own with Hebron, Coburn, Westbrook and Kents Hill struggling for State honors.

Hebron recently broke into the limelight by defeating the Harvard freshmen on their home floor. The team, being well balanced and having no outstanding stars, appears on paper to be the most formidable aggregation in the Pine Tree State.

As yet Hebron's opponents have been unable to break up the remarkable passing game of Hobbs and Crane, playing left and right forwards, respectively. Bridge at center is featuring again this year.

Beech, Edes, and Wheeler are the other members of the quintet which all Hebron hopes to see annex the State pennant.

COBURN IN TRAINING

Coburn, the State champs for 1923, have been in strict training for the last three weeks under the able direction of Coach Ray Haines, former New Hampshire man.

The team is composed of a number of star ball tossers from Adams, Mass., as Capt. Fielder, McCroay, LaAdams and Martoski all hail from this town.

RHODY BOY AT HELM.

Kent's Hill, coached by Henry Baacke, former Rhode Island State athlete, is fast rounding into shape. Kent's Hill boys whitewashed Farmington High, 103 to 2, in the first game of the season and as yet has not suffered defeat.

Captain Don Heley, one of the premier basketball players of the State, is holding down the forward position. Verne Chase, former Lynn English star athlete, is proving his worth to the Kent Hill team.

Coburn should have the advantage with a team composed of husky veterans, but Hebron, with an exceedingly well-balanced quintet, will provide plenty of keen competition.

Kent's Hill as yet has not met a team of its major rival's calibre.

An Evasion of the League Rule

Since the two major leagues have decided not to include coachers in their limit of players, there is some discussion as to what sort of a limit may have to be put on coachers.

Certain managers show an inclination to add all their old associates out of employment to the club payroll as coachers or assistants.

The Chicago White Sox, for instance, already have announced employment of three or four, with others possibly being taken on.

One manager has suggested that he may sign a couple of his surplus youngsters as coaches," so as to have them around absorbing points, etc.

GOLF IS GROWING FAST IN CANADA

Montreal, Jan. 26.—Golf's growth in Canada during the last few years is nothing short of phenomenal. According to statistics published in Fraser's Canadian Golf Directory and Year Book for 1923, there are 358 golf clubs in the Dominion, in 1916 there were only 76. The growth, therefore, has been almost five-fold in seven years. According to provinces, the distribution is as follows: Alberta, 51; British Columbia, 22; Manitoma, 33; New Brunswick 8; Nova Scotia, 14; Ontario, 124; Prince Edward Island, 2; Quebec, 63; Saskatchewan, 33.

CANADA SPEED SKATING, FEB. 9

Montreal, Jan. 26.—President Louis Rubenstein has announced that the Canadian speed skating championship will be held at Toronto on February 9 and 10.

Speed skating has taken quite a hold in the Queen City and they will be well-represented in the meet. It is anticipated a preliminary event will be necessary to pick the entries to qualify.

The weekly skating events started at Montreal last week at the M. A. A. A. track. Billy Smith leads the local steel blade artists, while Neil, a newcomer to the city has displayed remarkable ability and gives every indication of developing into a first-class boy.

NAVY OARSMEN IN THREE HOME EVENTS

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 26.—The Naval Academy boat crew will have three races at home, all of them dual contests, during the coming season and will row away from Annapolis twice, both times at Philadelphia.

The local season opens against Mass. Tech on April 26, the visitors bringing varsity and 150-pound crews. Princeton will row here with its varsity on May 3 and Syracuse, with varsity and probably freshmen, on May 24.

The Naval Academy varsity and probably second varsity and plebes will take part in the [illegible] Henley at Philadelphia on May [illegible] and the varsity will contend in the Olympic tryouts, also at Philadelphia, on June 13.

JACK TAYLOR WILL FIGHT JAMAICA KID

New York, Jan. 26.—Joe Woodman, manager of Jack Taylor, has booked up Taylor to swap punches with Jamaica Kid, the Negro battler, in a twelve-round bout at Columbus, O. on the night of Feb. 4. Taylor was to have met Harry Wills at Hartford on Jan. 25, but Wills hurt his right hand.

CLASSY MARES SOLD BY CEBRIAN

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 26.— Eleven of the broodmares and eight of the yearlings that are to go under the hammer in Edward Cebrian's dispersal sale of thoroughbreds at [illegible] Farm on Tuesday, January 22, were procured by him at the sale conducted by C. J. Fitz Gerald for A. K. Macomber at Durland's in New York, December 15, 1922.

That is to say, he bought the mares which had been bred in France at Haras du Quesnay to the stallions of McKinley, Sea Sick, War Cloud, Hollister (own brother to Hesperus, sire of Miss Star) and Rire Aux Larmes and their foals were born at [illegible] Farm.

At the time of the sale of these mares from Haras du Quesnay, which was established by the late William K. Vanderbilt and after his death passed to A. K. Macomber, it was stated in the press that "they include the best blood of England and France, and are representative of the great collection accumulated regardless of expense by the late William K. Vanderbilt."

WERE COSTLY MARES.

These mares cost Mr. Cebrian an average in excess of $4,000 plus their transportation and a year's excellent keep—for no mares anywhere appear in better condition—and in return they have rewarded him with eight splendid yearlings and are again in the productive state. Whether or not he is to have a profit on his investment depends, of course, upon what the nineteen head will bring at the sale.

In the matter to cost to Mr. Cebrian Scramble stands at the top of the list of these mares. She was knocked down to him at $9,200 after a steady bidding tilt with Sam C. Hildreth of the Rancocas Stud.

Last Spring she foaled a very racy-looking filly by Rire aux Larmes and she now is heavily in foal to Troutbeck (sire of Horgan and Starbeck), a couple of three-year-olds that are expected to figure extensively in the racing of 1924.

Scramble's sire is Le Melior, a winner that did not race much on account of the war. He is by Ajax [illegible] Fox-Orme-Ormonde) out of Ischia, by Isinglass, she out of Santhia by St. Simon. Scramble's dam is the noted American mare, Tangle, by [illegible], out of Spinaway, by Leamington.

Tangle, of course, was an own sister to the wonderful race mare Tanya and they belong to one of the stoutest families in all the world.

Another mare that combines the blood of Hanover with that of Isinglass and in addition brings in the blood of Presige (sire of Sardanapale) is Formis.

She is by Presige and out of Foresight (stake winner and producer) by Helmet, out of First Sight (winner in England and France and a good producer) by Isinglass, out of Nandine (dam of St. Bris), by Wisdom, out of Farchette (half-sister to Be Cannie, dam of Mother-in-Law, dam of Son-in-Law, a good race horse and outstanding sire in England).

CLASSIC WINNERS.

Sweetheart 2nd, being by Oversight (own brother to Foresight) carried the Hanover—Isinglass nick also. She is from Sweetness, by Maintenon, out of Sweet Hilda, by Pepper and Salt, and traces to the Prunella branch of the No. 1 family, which was prolific in classic winners.

In England they have for a long time been trying to get back the line of Flying Dutchman which was lost to France and through which came the mighty Epinard.

The mare Gibbs in the Cebrian sale traces twice in tail male line to Dollar, the outstanding son of Flying Dutchman, and Ksar was another modern French performer of great distinction to trace to Dollar.

Gibbs is by Sea Sick and there are two yearlings in the sale by him. One is a filly out of War Stories and the other a colt out of Miss Glatigne. This latter yearling goes twice to Dollar, Miss Glatigne carrying his blood through Lutin, sire of her dam, Miss Gennes.

From France comes the information that the highest tried two-year-old in the Marcomber string is by McKinley, out of Gibbs, and there is an own sister to him (The Sirdar) in the Cebrian sale, and she also "doubles the Dollar blood," of which Ksar had three infusions.

STAR SWIMMERS AT MIAMI BEACH

New York, Jan. 26.—Many of the best men and women swimmers of the country will take part in an outdoor six-day swimming and diving carnival to be held at Miami, Fla., early next month. According to the present plans the showing of many of the competitors in this carnival will go a long way toward determining the personnel of the American Olympic swimming and diving team.

Heading the list of potential Olympic team candidates who will compete at the Florida resort next month is Miss Gertrude Ederle of the Women's Swimming Association of New York. Miss Ederle is regarded as the greatest woman swimmer ever developed and has many world's records to her credit. Another almost certain Olympic selection who will take part in the carnival is Miss Aileen Riggin, winner of the fancy diving championship at the last Olympic games. Miss Riggin is one of the youngest athletes ever to score at the Olympics. She was thirteen in 1920, when she captured the diving championship.

Another likely competitor in the Miami carnival is Miss Helen Wainwright, a point winner for this country at the last Olympics. Others who have been invited are Miss Elizabeth Baker, national outdoor diving champion; Miss Agnes Geraghty, Miss Adelaide Lambert, Panama Canal Zone champion, and several other star performers.

MOTORS

AUTOMOTIVE ERA IS HERE TO STAY

Packard President Predicts Continued Growth of Industry

"There were approximately 4,000,000 motor cars and trucks produced in this country in 1923," says Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car Company. "This exceeded the production of every previous year, including 1922. Present indications are that the figures for 1924 will be larger.

"This view is based on the sound truth that transportation is a fundamental need—and the history of this country has proved that it is almost an insatiable hunger. The automobile is a basic industry in the sense that it appeals to basic human needs—to more of them, perhaps, than does any other product or service. Not only does it satisfy the necessity of transportation, but it symbolizes all the aspirations of the large mass of humanity for something beyond bread and butter. In the sense, therefore, that it appeals to a larger number of needs, the appeal of the automobile is more basic than even clothing.

"The future of transportation, so far as the relative development of the railroad, the trolley, the automobile and the aeroplane is concerned, will more and more depend on the respective economy and efficiency of these means. Each must establish definitely its field of usefulness and develop in that field. Capital will not assume the burden of carrying any system of transportation which is economically unsound or not practically best adapted to the needs of those it serves.

"With fundamental considerations in mind, the forecast of sustained growth of the automobile industry is the conservative view. What new mechanical developments and new progress in manufacturing will come or what new facilities and agencies for automotive transportation will have to be invented and built are only secondary concerns. The main reality is that the automotive industry must gain because it serves a basic need that will continue to be an ever-growing one."

OBEDIENCE HERE IS DISOBEDIENCE THERE

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26.—Standardization of traffic laws in all States as a protection of automobile owners was urged by T. L. Hausmann, president of the Templar Motor Car Company of Cleveland, in a statement issued here.

"Present traffic laws," said Mr. Hausmann, "are as varied as the colors in the rainbow. In Pennsylvania, for instance, a motorist must pass a trolley car on the left hand side. If he does this in Illinois he will be arrested. In New Jersey the motorist approaching from the right has the right of way. In some other States the right of way depends on who gets there first. In certain States certain types of headlights are permissible. In others they will bring a fine.

"It is manifestly impossible for each motorist to know the traffic laws of every community he drives through. Yet when he innocently violates the regulations of some locality and is brought to court he is invariably informed that ignorance is no excuse. The need of uniformity of driving laws is apparent."

ARMY AND NAVY QUINTETS TO MEET

New York, Jan. 26.—Requests for tickets to the Army-Navy basketball game, which will be played on February 23 in the West Point gymnasium, already are coming in, according to army officials, and it seems certain that the demand will far exceed the supply. Accordingly, it has been announced that applications received after February 6 will not be considered and those sent prior to that time may be reduced, or rejected altogether.

The capacity of the gymnasium is only 3,600 and the cadets and officers require 1,400. This leaves only 2,200 seats and it is obvious that if the demand exceeds this figure, as it probably will, some will have to be disappointed.

YALE DIRECTOR IS ON INJURED LIST

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 26.—John T. Blossom, director of athletics at Yale, today returned from a hunting trip in North Carolina with his right eye badly infected as the result of being struck with a twig. He spent three days in the Knapp Hospital, New York City, but the condition of his eye was tonight reported as aggravated, with good chances, however, of saving it.

French Riders Ready

Paris, France, Jan. 26.—Several of the leading riders of France will compete in the Olympic cycling races. The most prominent candidates for the team are: Leducq, G. Wambst, Hamel, Binney, M. Boucher, Banchonn, C. Wambst and Roussel.

Giants Sign Contracts

Some of John McGraw's best known players have signed. Among those are Heine Groh and Hank Gowdy.

FINDS TRUE BALANCE

As most motor car owners and all automobile men know, the crankshaft is the heart of the motor. A well-balanced crankshaft means a smooth-running engine. According to C. P. Rockwell, New England distributor of Nash motor cars, Nash motors balances each shaft before it is assembled into the motor on a machine so accurate that it will record almost the weight of a human hair. Three calculations are made by the operator of this machine, and these calculations must absolutely check, otherwise the shaft is rejected.

ENTIRE TRAIN IS DEVOTED TO AUTOS

Chandler-Cleveland Make Record Shipment of New Cars

A solid train of thirty-five cars filled with Chandler and Cleveland automobiles was shipped January 19 from the factories at Cleveland for the distributor at Milwaukee.

"That so large an order should be shipped in January," says E. R. Parker, New England distributor at Boston, is significant as a forecast of an unusually early Spring trade in the automotive industry. Train-load shipments during the height of the season are common and attract no attention, but it is unusual among cars of the class represented by the Chandler and the Cleveland to make such shipments in the dead of Winter. Early resumption of peak production is clearly indicated.

"Nothing could more forcefully demonstrate the trend in motorcar buying than that a distributor in a northern city should order more cars in the middle of the Winter than ever before, even in the Spring "busy season." That the use of the motor has ceased entirely to be seasonal is the natural conclusion. Buyers no longer wait for fine weather, but take their new cars for the comfort that they will obtain from them during the coldest period of the year."

HUDSON AND ESSEX MODELS POPULAR

"The Hudson and Essex sales force is kept busy," says F. A. Ordway, vice-president of the Henley-Kimball Company. "The new Essex Six and Hudson Coach, both being of latest design, make a very strong appeal to the buyer; both of these cars sell at practically open car prices.

"It is only natural that we can give the public the most for the money, as the 'coach' was the original idea of the Hudson organization. Our experience in manufacturing, coupled together with our tremendous production, gives the purchaser the benefit of our purchasing power.

"The Essex buyer has the benefit of 484 Hudson parts that are incorporated in the Essex. These parts are therefore much heavier than what are necessary for that size car, but they give the customer much better service for long wear. We are still booking orders in the order in which they are taken, that everyone may get a fair delivery."

NEW FEATURES OFFERED PUBLIC

Chrysler Six Design Reveals Advanced Engineering Innovations

Walter P. Chrysler's new motor car, the Chrysler Six, is being built and distributed by a new motor car company, the Chrysler Motor Corporation, an associate of the older Maxwell Motor Corporation, and Chalmers Motor Car Company.

"Wholly new machinery, tools, dies, jigs, etc., necessary to build a motor car," says C. E. Fay of the C. E. Fay Company of Boston, "have been installed in the great plant of the Chalmers Motor Car Company, which has been completely re-equipped. Maxwell-Chalmers dealers throughout the country will handle the car.

"Details of construction of the Chrysler reveal even more advanced innovations in design than were incorporated in the first statement of the car. They disclose more clearly that scientific applications of numerous fundamental engineering principles were contributed to it in ways not heretofore brought out in any other motor car."

Mr. Chrysler himself is quoted as saying: "In this car have been combined for the first time, I believe, ultimate beauty and smartness, economical light weight and operating qualities, ideal size for ease of operation and convenience in parking, extreme roominess and comfort, with material quality, performing ability, long life and road solidity. We hope, within the next three or four weeks, to produce sufficient cars so that the public, through demonstrations, can learn for itself exactly what I mean."

WILLIE GARNER READY TO RIDE

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 26.—William Garner, 16, is ready to make his debut the coming season. He is a member of the famous Garner family and is a first cousin of Mack Garner, In Memoriam's jockey, and of Guy Garner, who went to Europe several years ago when he grew too heavy for the American weight. William was tutored last year by his cousin Mack and Pete Coyne, veteran trainer. He can make 85 pounds.

OFFERS GREAT VALUE

Largest six in thousand dollar class, the new Velie, on display show room of New England Velie Co.

A. J. Shorey of the New England Velie Company enthusiastically asserts that the world's biggest six in the thousand dollar class is the Velie Model 56, manufactured by the well-known Velie Motors Corporation of Moline, Illinois.

"The Velie Motors Corporation knows how," says General Manager Shorey. "They have been in business sixteen years, successfully manufacturing good automobiles. They have the equipment and the finances, and in bringing out this car they have concentrated not only on the size of the car, but also on its quality. There is nothing manufactured in this country today that offers so great a value. But the car speaks for itself—and it's new on our salesroom floor."

Whir and Hum of Auto Motors

WINDY CITY BIG ANNUAL GETS OFF TO GOOD START

Chicago's Twenty-Fourth Auto Show Presents a Setting of Gorgeous Splendor

Chicago's twenty-fourth annual automobile show holds forth at the Coliseum and First Regiment Armory, as usual, this year, opening January 26 and continuing until February 2. More than 500 cars are exhibited by seventy-four manufacturers. In addition space has been assigned to 250 exhibitors of accessories and auto equipment.

The array of cars, the splendor of the setting, the many different styles in vehicles added another stage to the broad highway of transportation written by the tires of the automobile.

Automobiles, color and scenery are blended into an artistic spectacle which will live long in the memory of those who visit the exposition. Not the least detail of interest to the legions who appreciate the worth of the automobile, has been overlooked. Moreover there is plenty of material to furnish food for thought for the ones who hope to own their own motors at some happy time. It requires a nimble mind and several hours to obtain a working knowledge of all that is offered at this show.

Supported by an alluring background, rich in paintings, statuary and other works of art, more than $1,000,000 worth of cars and accessories are offered for inspection.

Four wheel brakes, fabric tops and balloon tires are the two sensational developments revealed at the Chicago show this year. The 1924 car is distinctly ahead of its 1923 brother, good as the latter was. In addition to many models with four-wheel brakes and balloon tires, there are a host of detail improvements of importance, with the result that the 1924 car is more powerful, more economical, smoother running, easier riding, more durable, better looking, and more comfortable to drive, and yet with all these advantages, prices are lower.

LEXINGTON MAKES STRONG SHOWING

Aaron G. Cohen of No. 886 Commonwealth avenue, New England distributor of Lexington motor cars, expressed yesterday great satisfaction with the reception tendered the Lexington throughout his territory. Mr. Cohen said in part:

"According to present indications, a big volume of early Spring business is certain. The Lexington possesses patented features which assure its continued popularity. The Link-Belt silent chain drive, lubrication of all moving parts by oil under pressure—a most important feat by Lexington engineers—are but two advantages typical of the many enjoyed by Lexington owners.

"Reliable New England dealers are showing enthusiasm over this motor car. We are hearing from many in unoccupied territories, and will be glad to hear from more."

CLIMBS MOUNTAIN

True Blue Oakland Sedan accomplishes rough climb to Buffalo Bill's grave at top of Colorado Mountain.

The summit of Lookout Mountain is 7,500 feet elevation and is 2,500 above the valley. It was a favorite scouting post for Buffalo Bill during the years he ranged the plans, and at his death the peak on which he had so often stood was chosen for his grave. The spot is marked with a cairn enclosed by an iron fence.

DODGE PRODUCES MILLIONTH CAR

One million motor cars in nine years, the millionth car registering as "standard model" just as the first one did, and yet differing from the first in perhaps ten thousand major and minor improvements—this is the recent announcement by Dodge Brothers. The millionth Dodge Brothers motor car moved out from the assembly line, went through its final test and was shipped from the Detroit factory, December 13, 1923, just nine years and eleven days after production started.

"As far as can be ascertained," says C. S. Henshaw, the Boston dealer, "no Dodge Brothers car delivered in this territory through the Henshaw Motor Company, who have been Dodge Brothers dealers ever since the first car was shipped into New England, has ever worn out. The very first car delivered here, which was welcomed by Mayor Curley and a notable concourse of parading motorists has covered better than 200,000 miles and is still good-looking and able to negotiate any task.

Chandler Wins

San Bernardino, Cal.—The tortuous eighteen-mile pull from the foot of Waterman Canyon over the "Rim of the World" to Lake Arrowhead was conquered by the Chandler with its transmission sealed in high gear. The distance covered was thirteen miles, starting at an altitude of 1,074 feet and jumping to 5,870 feet. Grades attained 15 per cent. around hairpin turns and up steep pitches known as the switchbacks. There were seventen official judges along the road, representing the Automobile Club of Southern California and Southern California newspapers

STEERING DEVICE A GREAT SUCCESS

The D. & O. Safety Steering Control Appreciated by Public

"The D & O Safety Steering Control for Ford cars, trucks and Fordson tractors, is reaping the fruit of essential merit in material, workmanship and mechanical structure," said Malcolm Green, president of the Accesso Manufacturing Company yesterday.

"With factory in Waltham, Mass., and executive offices at No. 99 State street, this company is introducing this important appliance in all the States of the Union, in Canada, and in about thirty foreign countries. This steering control, designed and built for Fords, has the unique record of making friends for itself and its distributors whenever and wherever introduced.

"The ever-rising flood of letters from Ford owners after using this control for two, three or five years, stimulates the management toward the attainment of perfection in type, material and business methods. The company enjoys an extraordinarily good reputation for prompt service and reasonable repair charges."

REO
The Gold Standard of Values

Reo 4 Passenger Coupe $1875 at Lansing Add Tax
With the High Powered Six Cylinder Engine

THE fact remains that complete ease of mind and body for passengers and driver calls for exactly these factors found in every Reo Six:

Quick, Positive Braking, assured by greatly oversized service and emergency brakes. Simple foot control of each set leaves both hands free for steering and signalling.

Light and ignition switches on steering column, absence of hand-brake, placement of gear lever which permits driver to make all shifts without bending over—these typify Reo's planning for great comfort.

Eager power from the famous 50 h. p. Reo Six engine is applied gently through a 13-plate clutch never known to grab or slip. Intake valves in head and exhaust valves offset, promote care-free driving by minimizing carbon.

Forecasting A Tremendous Spring Demand

more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.

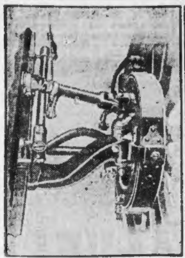
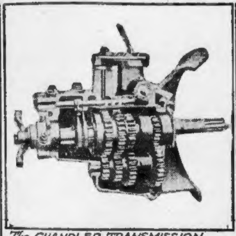
IMPROVEMENTS IN 1924 CARS



THE BUICK FRONT-WHEEL BRAKE ASSEMBLY, FOUR-WHEEL BRAKES ARE AN IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT of 1923.



The CHANDLER TRANSMISSION, in WHICH the GEARS ARE CONSTANTLY IN MESH, IS AN INTERESTING DESIGN.

NEW FEATURES ARE PRESENTED

Four-Wheel Brakes and Balloon Tires Preeminent

By ALEXANDER JOHNSTON
Editor of Motor

THE two big outstanding developments of 1923, seen in the 1924 models, are four-wheel brakes and balloon tires. Aside from these many minor improvements have been made, including better engine lubricating systems, better balance of engines, more easily operated clutches, improved detail in transmissions, and an increase in the number of semi-floating axles. oBdies, of course, are better in nearly every make. There are many new designs of closed cars, more of the semi-short variety. Painting is better. There are more low-priced closed models.

Four-wheel brakes have taken the industry almost by storm. Over twenty-five makers indicate four-wheel brakes as optional or standard equipment. The hydraulic system has around fifteen makers using it, but that is mainly because its adoption was easier than a mechanical system. The hydraulic works with eminent satisfaction and has the big advantage of giving almost perfect equalication without the use of any special equalizing attachment. The liquid pressure is the equalizing medium. The French designer Perrot believes that even with a mechanical system special equalizing devices are not necessary.

BALLOON TIRES.

Balloon tires are here. Already many makers are specifying them as optional equipment and some as standard equipment. Since the Rubber Association decided on standards for this type of tire, car designers could go ahead and make whatever changes were necessary to adopt these tires to their cars.

There are more six-cylinder engines than last year, and even the class under $1,000 shows more sixes than before. Of course, the four-cylinder is the leading design so far as production is concerned because Ford, Dodge, Maxwell, Overland and other large producers make only four-cylinder cars. However, there are about 70 per cent. of the makers who offer six-cylinder models.

NEW FEATURES.

The pressure oiling system, the oil strainer, air cleaner and engine balance are big talking points this year. The first three have an important bearing on carbonization and crank case dilution. The latter is responsible for a great deal of the wear that takes place in an engine.

Piston ring fits are better. Piston designs have been improved, and a great deal has been done to affect better burning of the fuel by changing the design of the firing chamber. The change here also results in a reduced knocking tendency on the part of the engine.

SHAFT CHANGES

There are more engines with crankshaft vibration dampers; or, if not such a devise, there there are more or larger crankshaft bearings and stiffer shafts. This is all done to prevent the engine from vibrating unduly all through its speed range.

Balloon tires and four-wheel brakes have made necessary some changes in front spring suspension and steering, and as the features mentioned are more widely adopted, changes in steering and springing will be more pronounced.

Frames are generally stiffer, so as to do away with body rattles brought about by frame distortion.

The transmission needs a [illegible] changes but only a few have been made. The propeller shaft and universal joints have received little attention.

New Olds a Beauty

"The body and Tuarc disc wheels of the new Olds sport model are painted a deep weathered bronze green, with a distinctive gold stripe. Brown Spanish upholstery harmonises with the body tone.

"A capacious trunk securely mounted, with its smart enamel finish, immediately marks this car as distinctly different. Many other accessories provide that protection and comfort so essential to the owner."

CHEVROLET DINNER AT PROVIDENCE

Three States were represented at the retail sales contest dinner of the Sills-Chevrolet Company, distributor for New England, at the Providence Biltmore last night. The dinner was the aftermath of a sales contest held during the last three months of 1923 in which the Retail Stores at Providence, Portland and Boston participated. The Providence Branch, being the winners, were the guests of the Boston and Portland stores. Practically all department heads of the Sills-Chevrolet Company were present. Mr. W. C. Sills was guest of honor. Mr. H. V. Neville, sales manager, was toastmaster.

Individual prizes were awarded to the salesmen who sold the most cars during the sales contest. Mr. James Steadman of Boston won first prize; second prize went to Mr. Arthur Trainor of Providence, and third prize went to Mr. I M. Choate of Portland. Mr. J. A. MacVicar was awarded a prize also as winning team sales manager.

NEW OLDS DISPLAYS COMPLETE EQUIPMENT

"It has been the aim of the Olds Motor Works," said Harry C. Dunn, general manager of the Boston Oldsmobile Company, during an interview yesterday, "to achieve a completely equipped motor car. How nearly they have accomplished their aim can be seen in a survey of the accessory equipment in and on the new sport touring car.

AUTOMOBILE WORLD IS WASTING FUEL

The automobile industry is wasting too much fuel, some of the automotive engineers believe, and they are anxious to give the public devices which will eliminate a portion of the fuel losses and some of the indirect losses resulting from poor carburetion.

The engineers state that the desired characteristics of the ideal carburetor are in part: Engine must develop maximum power at wide open throttles; maximum efficiency must be maintained wherever possible; proper acceleration must be provided when using economical mixtures, and vaporization and distribution must be correct in all cases.

WANTED—RELIABLE NEW ENGLAND DEALERS

NEW PLANT TAKEN OVER IN PHILLY

Willys Acquires Factory for Northeastern Production

To take care of what is expected to be the greatest demand for its product in its history along the entire Atlantic seaboard, a demand presaged by the remarkable popularity achieved by Overland and Willys-Knight motor cars during 1923, Willys-Overland announces the acquisition of a new plant in Philadelphia, in which 100 Overland cars a day are to be built within another four or six weeks' time.

This announcement makes Philadelphia a greater automobile centre than ever before, inasmuch as it is anticipated that the output of the new factory will take care of the bulk of the demand within the fifteen States and the District of Columbia contiguous to the Atlantic coast from the New England States to the Carolinas.

It is expected that the plant will begin operation some time in February with a factory force of approximately 800 men, augmented by a sales and office force of sixty people. It is anticipated that the initial daily production will be 100 cars, but this is soon to be increased to 200. The present schedule calls for the manufacture of Overland models only, but it is expected that the Willys-Knight line will be added shortly.

CHAINS NECESSARY IN HEAVY SLUSH

Arrow Grip Chains, with their patented cross chain fastener and side chain locking device, demonstrated their real worth last Friday in the heavy slush. The additional gripping power of this type was a great advantage to drivers. The side chain locking device and the cross chain fastener, exclusive features, do away with the difficulty of replacements and attachments on the road, according to C. M. Evans, manager of the Associated Tire Corporation of No. 1041 Commonwealth avenue, who is building a New England dealer organization for Arrow Grip Chains.

How We Spend Your Money

in building Studebaker cars

Why people buy 150,000 yearly

IT is true that we spend lavishly on Studebaker cars. But it's all to your advantage.

It is by that spending that we give you the greatest value in the fine-car field. We offer prices no one matches on any comparable cars.

That lavish spending led people last year to pay $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars. And that volume brings our prices down to where they are.

$50,000,000 in plants

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000. In modern plants and equipment we have $50,000,000. Seventy per cent of that amount was spent in the past seven years. So it represents the last word in equipment.

$8,000,000 in drop forge plants, so every vital part is made to Studebaker standards.

$10,000,000 in body plants, so Studebaker ideals may be shown in every body.

All that is staked in a permanent way on satisfying fine-car buyers better than our rivals.

What extras cost

Lack of vibration is a famous Studebaker feature. We get that by machining crank shafts as they were in Liberty Airplane Motors. That extra cost is over $600,000 yearly.

Matchless endurance is another famous feature. One Studebaker Six, still in active use, has run 475,000 miles since 1918. We get that through costly steels. On some we pay 15% bonus to makers to get formulas exact.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,600 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,000 of its price.

In closed cars we offer wondrous luxury. The lining is Chase Mohair, made from the fine fleece of Angora goats. Velour would cost about one-third that, saving up to $100 a car.

Note those bumpers, that steel trunk, those extra disc wheels with cord tires on some models. Note that extra courtesy light. Think what they would cost if you bought them.

The cost of care

The unvarying standards in Studebaker cars are fixed by a department of Methods and Standards. It is enormously expensive.

Our constant improvements are due to ceaseless research. 125 experts devote their time to the study of betterments. They make 500,000 tests per year.

That reliability is due to 12,000 inspections of the material and workmanship in each Studebaker car before it leaves the factory. This requires 1,000 inspectors.

Being generous with men

We pay maximum wages—at least as much as anyone else will pay. Then we pay extra for continuous service. Last year, 13,000 men in our factories got anniversary checks—total $1,300,000. After five years of service those checks amount to 10% of their wages.

We spend $2,000,000 yearly on our co-operative work for men.

All this to keep men happy, to foster morale, and to keep men with us when they develop efficiency.

Not extravagant

Do [illegible] things seem extravagant? They are not. All those extra dollars save more dollars for our buyers.

They result in the cars you see, in the prices and values we offer. Nothing else in the field can compare.

Those values have resulted in a demand for 150,000 cars per year. That volume cuts our costs in two, as compared with limited production.

It is Limited production,

Heavy overhead,
Out-of-date machinery,
Antiquated methods,
Non-economical plants,
Transient labor,
Discontented workers.

We've eliminated those things. We've done it at what seems to you a heavy cost per car. But each of those extra dollars saves $5, we believe. Note what values and what prices have resulted. Note the amazing demand—the overwhelming demand—it has brought for Studebaker cars.

Don't Buy Blindly

Studebaker sales have almost trebled in the past three years. The growing demand is the sensation of Motordom.

For 72 years the name Studebaker has stood for quality and class. But never so much as today.

Then don't buy a car at $1,000 or over without learning what we offer.
